-Missiles- Blame Batted Back

GOP Chiefs Say
HST Was One
Who Failed

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Republican leaders of both houses of Congress said Monday former President Truman is to blame for any American lag behind Russia in the development of missiles.

In an unusual action, Sen. Knowland (R-Calif.) and Rep. Martin (R-Mass.) issued a joint "public memorandum" addressed to Truman contending that the former Democratic President "failed to act" to speed research and development.

They were replying to recent criticism of President Eisenhower by Truman. The former President's statements also drew comment from Vice President Nixon and James C. Hagerty, White House press secretary.

"We rested on our oars during the last years of your administration while the Russians went to work," the two Republicans said. "If today we are behind the Soviet Union in some respects in the race to perfect the weapons of the future—guided and ballistic missiles—a considerable part of the blame lies on the doorstep of your administration."

In New York, Truman commented briefly to a reporter: "Well, of course the Republicans always have to have somebody to pass the buck to."

The critical GOP blast was touched off by what Knowland and Martin described as Truman's "incredible remarks" to newsmen in New York Sunday.

At that time, Truman was critical of Eisenhower's State of the Union message, saying it came a couple of years late, and declared he does not think Eisenhower is "a good policy maker nor is he a good budget maker." The former President said Eisenhower "was a great military commander in Europe and in NATO when he had someone to tell him what to do."

Hagerty was asked about Truman's statement. He said, "other than to say I think they are ridiculous, I have no comment."

The Knowland-Martin reply was made public a few hours after Vice President Nixon voiced disapproval of Truman's statement. Nixon told a luncheon audience he "would like to dissent" from Truman's views.

In reply, Nixon lauded Eisenhower's address to Congress and said:

"The President's delivery indicated he has the voice, he has the brain and he knows what to do for the good of the United States of America."

Warmer

Another Eisenhower message—a personal letter to Soviet Premier Bulganin—got a warmer reception from Truman. The former President told reporters Monday that the Eisenhower letter, dealing with the possibility of a summit conference, was "a good document . . . that contains a plan for action."

The Knowland-Martin statement said that Truman seemed to have "forgotten certain parts of the record during the period you were President." They quoted Dr. Werner Von Braun, in charge of scientific development of the Army's Jupiter missile, as saying "the United States had no ballistic missile program worth mentioning between 1945 and 1951."

"Your own Presidential Air Policy Commission on January 1, 1948, warned that, even then, other nations might be ahead of us in developing an intercontinental missile," the Republican leaders said. "You failed to act."

"When they urged that research in this field be given the highest priority—in 1948—you failed to act. In 1949 you even impounded 75 million dollars which Congress had provided for Air Force research and development. You did identically the same thing again in 1950."

"Virtually all that has been done to develop the weapons of the future has been done by the Eisenhower administration which looked the facts in the face and acted."

Mansfield Wed In Glass Chapel

... Jayne, Musclemann Swap Rings

PORTUGUESE BEND, Calif. (AP) — Beateous Jayne Mansfield married musclemann Mickey Hargitay Monday night in a picturesque seaside chapel while hundreds of fans clamored on the nearby hillsides.

Inside the glass and redwood Wayfarers' Chapel was a scene of tranquility as the film star, dressed in a pink gown that outlined her fabulous measurements, exchanged quiet vows and wedding rings with her Hungarian-born boy friend.

Jayne knew her lines perfectly and the ceremony went without a hitch. At the close Mickey clutched her shoulder and they clinched after whispered words of endearment.

Outside the chapel was another matter. A noisy, eager crowd estimated at 1,500 lined the highway below and the hillsides above, overlooking the Pacific Ocean. "We want Mansfield," they chanted while the 21 officers of the

Mansfield

Sheriff's Office and Highway Patrol kept order.

A hundred well-wishers packed into the unique chapel, but the only celebrities were actress Marie Windsor and comedian Bob Hope, with whom the bride recently traveled to Korea to entertain U.S. troops.

Photographers almost outnumbered the guests. When Mickey and Jayne emerged after the ceremony they were greeted by a blinding glare of flashbulbs and TV lights.

Before the ceremony, the bride stood in the office of the Rev. Kenneth W. Knox and confessed: "I'm so excited. No, I'm not nervous, just excited."

She was so excited that she could scarcely stand still for photographs. After a few shots the most photographed girl of recent Hollywood history said, "take some pictures of my mother instead."

Despite the clamor outside, the actual ceremony was the conservative, serious one that Jayne expressed a desire for. A baritone intoned "Because" and an organ and harp played "I Love You Truly" and "Oh Promise Me," in keeping with the bride's wishes.

The only perilous moment came when Jayne was required to kneel on a satin pillow before the chapel decoration of a heart created of small roses. The form-fitting wedding gown seemed incapable of such maneuvers, but she managed to make it. "I practiced this before," she explained earlier.

'Door Not Closed To Compromise'— School Board Group To Continue Tax Talks

By BETTY PERSON

Star Staff Writer

GRAND ISLAND, Neb.—Richard C. Brown, executive secretary of the Nebraska State School Boards Association, said Monday night the NSSBA's executive committee has authorized him to participate in any future meetings concerned with united efforts to broaden Nebraska's tax base.

This action came after the committee Sunday night had voted down recommendation to the convention of a general proposal calling for a constitutional amendment to broaden the tax base designed to bring united support behind one plan by all groups interested in enacting a sales and/or income tax.

After turning down the constitutional amendment proposal, the executive committee submitted to association members a resolution drawn by the NSSBA executive committee which calls for legislative enactment of a combination sales and income tax to replace the state property tax and state support for schools.

Brown said the association members voted on the resolution Monday by secret ballot and the votes will be tabulated at a business meeting Tuesday.

The executive secretary said the "door shouldn't be closed yet" on possible NSSBA compromise in the future regarding the broadened tax base issue.

The NSSBA resolution voted up on Monday includes a provision that the Legislature should enact state support for local school districts "of at least $75 per child in average daily membership, with any remainder allocated to the counties, as the Legislature may provide, for general purposes."

The $75 per child, on the basis of average daily membership, would amount to an annual appropriation of about $21 million for support of local school districts.

Executive committee members decided Sunday they preferred their own resolution to be worked out with the Legislature rather than the constitutional amendment proposal first advanced at a meeting in Lincoln last Thursday.

It calls for amending the constitution to provide that the state would be prohibited after 1959 from levying a state property tax for general fund purposes; that the state could continue special property levies enacted previously, and that in the event of an emergency, two-thirds of the Legislature could enact property tax levies for specific state purposes.

Brown said the NSSBA "is not anti-cooperation" with other groups interested in doing something about broadening Nebraska's tax base.

Burke Said Active

Another source reported that Dr. Harry Burke, superintendent of Omaha Public Schools, was at Grand Island Sunday night talking to NSSBA executive committee members advancing the constitutional amendment proposal offered last month by the Nebraska State Education Association.

The NSEA constitutional amendment petition campaign proposal, which has gained no support from other groups interested in broadening the tax base, repeals the guaranteed replacement of the state property tax, calls for enactment of a sales tax with the revenue to be distributed to all governmental subdivisions.

The NSEA executive committee voted last week to withhold action on its petition campaign for 30 days to see if united support could be obtained behind one plan.

U.S. Security Placed First

... But Close Scrutiny Certain

WASHINGTON (AP) — Members of Congress reacted to President Eisenhower's $73,934,000,000 budget Monday with general expressions of willingness to spend whatever is needed for national security.

Concern for defense needs seemed to be tempering the customary demands for budget cutting, even though this is the biggest budget yet for a peacetime year.

However, a number said there would have to be a close scrutiny: To see whether the budget is truly in line with needs, whether its bare balance between income and outgo comes too close to red ink financing, and whether various nondefense items should not be cut—or increased, in some instances.

McCormack Comments

Rep. McCormack of Massachusetts, the Democratic leader in the House, said that if it came to a choice between a balanced budget and "doing the things necessary to preserve the country," he'd prefer an unbalanced budget.

Sen. Lyndon Johnson of Texas, the Senate Democratic leader, said:

"It will be analyzed thoroughly. And Congress will attempt to determine whether it is adequate to strengthen the nation's security and sustain the nation's welfare. There will be conflicting judgments as to its adequacy and these judgments will have to be weighed carefully."

The Johnson-McCormack attitudes are of particular significance since the Democrats control both the Senate and House.

Rep. Frelinghuysen (R-NJ) summed up this way:

Called Realistic

"The President's budget message represents a well balanced and realistic response to the demands of the dawnning space age."

"The President calls for sacrifices. We should all be willing to accept such sacrifices in the interest of national defense and world peace."

Sen. Capehart (R-Ind) mixed realism and wishfulness in his comment:

"It's a realistic budget. I wish it didn't have to be so high, but I think we can find some places to cut out non-necessary items."

Three leading members — Sen. Byrd (D-Va.), Sen. Bridges (R-NH) and Rep. Reed (R-NY)—raised questions about Eisenhower's expectation of a continued high level of tax receipts.

"I believe a drop in tax revenue is more likely than an increase," Byrd said. Calling Eisenhower's estimates reckless, Byrd said the administration, for one thing, counts on an estimate of 700 million dollars coming in from postal rate increases yet to be passed on by Congress.

Eisenhower's postal proposals include one to raise the cost of mailing a first class letter to 5 cents from the present 3 cents.

2-3 Of It To Go For Defense

By DOUGLAS B. CORNELL

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower presented to Congress Monday the highest budget in peacetime history—$73,934,000,000 to embark the nation on "the dawnning age of space conquest."

Two out of every three dollars in the spending program, for the 1959 fiscal year starting next July 1, are earmarked for national protection in what Eisenhower said is clearly "a time of growing danger."

To meet these dangers flung out from the Kremlin, the President proposes to spend a billion dollars more on the missile program alone—a total of $5,300,000,000.

The precariously balanced budget cuts and skimps on civilian and even some military items to put more money into missiles and into nuclear weapons and vehicles, supersonic planes, greater foreign aid and a stepped-up "effort on military satellites and other outer space vehicles."

No Tax Boost

It calls for holding taxes where they are now, for tilting up temporarily the 275 billion dollar bid on the national debt, for a nickel stamp on letters, and for 83,000 fewer men in military uniform. Pronouncing his budget adequate to meet America's responsibilities, Eisenhower informed Congress in a 22,000-word message:

"Americans have a tradition of uniting in action when their freedoms and welfare are threatened. We do not shirk our clear responsibilities when new challenges arise."

"I feel confident that this budget expresses the way in which the American people will want to respond to the promises and dangers of the dawnning age of space conquest. New dimensions must be added to our defenses, and outmoded activities must be discarded."

Budget In Brief

In condensed form, the government's financial position now is this:

In round figures, the Treasury expects to take in $74,400,000,000 and pay out $73,900,000,000 in the next fiscal year, leaving a surplus of roughly $500,000,000. For the current fiscal year, ending next June 30, it now counts on collecting about $72,400,000,000 and spending $72,800,000,000.

So instead of ringing up a third surplus in a row, the administration will wind up this year about $400,000,000 in the red. That's because the threat of Soviet advances with satellites and missiles sparked bigger spending at a time when business and revenues have been slumping.

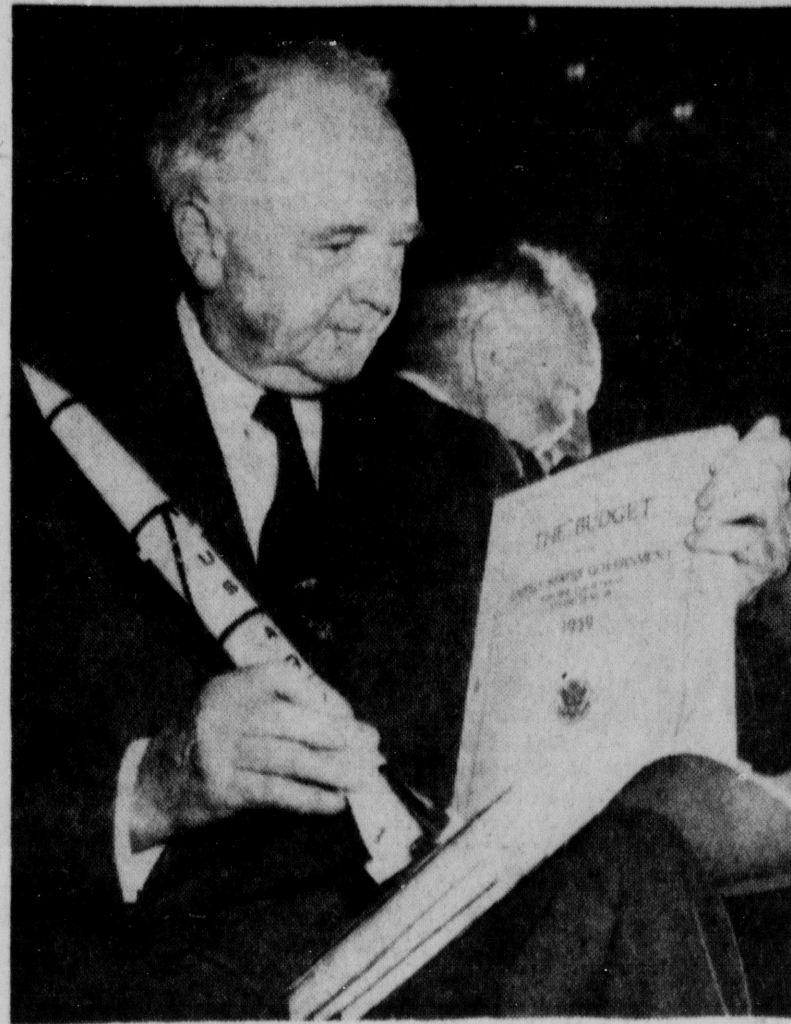

But Eisenhower told Congress, as he did in last Thursday's State of the Union message, that there are "strong grounds to support my confidence that the expansion of our economy will soon be resumed, bringing higher levels of receipts with present tax rates."

Nevertheless, the surplus projected for the year ahead relies on a three billion dollar vision in the crystal ball of federal financial

Five City Department Heads Ask 5-Day Week

By VIRGIL FALLOON

Star Staff Writer

Five city department heads Monday urged a 40-hour work week status for their employees to equalize with other city workers.

The City Council deferred discussion of the communication until next Monday's meeting.

The proposed 40-hour work week was endorsed by Fire Chief Paul Feaster, Paving Supt. Lyle Gieseker, Street Supt. Lynn Myers, Park Supt. James Ager, and Police Chief Joe Carroll.

Excludes Firemen

The communication noted that firemen would have to be excluded from immediate consideration because of conflicts with certain state laws as to work hours.

But the five officials said "the inability to implement the plan in any one department should not prejudice its merits before another group."

Approximately 400 of the city's 720 employees are not covered by a five-day week, according to city officials.

A five-day week is in effect for City Hall workers and city water and light department employees.

From 48 To 72

Work weeks for other employees vary from 48 hours and upwards in the police, paving, street and park departments to 72 hours for firemen, who are under state laws.

City Hall employees work from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. with 45-minute lunch periods, or 4 1/2 hours per week. A few union workers in the light department have 40-hour status.

In September, 1956, the City Employees Association recommended a 40-hour work week for all city employees, but the Council did not take favorable action.

Excluding the firemen, City Personnel Director Ray Ramsay estimated a 40-hour work week for the non-covered workers would increase these payrolls about 20 percent or roughly $200,000 annually.

Double Manpower Needs

A 40-hour week for firemen would entail a doubling of present

Vessel, Seeking Aid, Disappears

OBAN, Scotland (Tuesday) (AP)—The 750-ton British naval vessel Barcombe sent out an urgent radio distress signal and then fell silent. Hours later rescue craft probing through darkness and heavy seas had failed to find the ship.

The Barcombe is a boom defense vessel, a type which operates harbor boom defenses during wartime. It normally carries a crew of 32.

The distress signal said: "Need assistance immediately—believe I am aground in position 56.10 north and 86.15 west." The position would place the ship on the shore of Oronsay Island, off the west coast of Argyll. But neither the island lifeboat nor shore searchers could find her.

An Admiralty spokesman said: "It may be that she has had radio trouble or possibly that something worse has happened to her."

Power Peace Closer

'First Stage'

Agreement

Announced

By DON WALTON

Star Staff Writer

A "first stage" agreement in Nebraska's public power battle was reached Monday, according to a joint announcement by Consumers Public Power District and the Nebraska Public Power System.

The announcement stressed that the move indicated only "tentative agreements by management" and did not "imply endorsement by directors but only follow directives to continue negotiations authorized by all boards" concerned.

The tentative program is scheduled to be submitted to the respective boards by Feb. 1, the announcement said.

The Negotiators

A series of negotiations on the controversy has been held between R. L. Schacht, Consumers' general manager; D. J. DeBoer, executive director of NPPS, and A. L. Chaney of West Point, manager of the Nebraska Electric Generation and Transmission Cooperative, Inc.

Schacht told The Star the agreement was "a step along the way," but involved "no new principles."

DeBoer said the tentative agreement represented "to some extent, a compromise on the part of both agencies. We're closer to agreement now."

The announcement set a target date of April 1 for final contracts, drafted by an independent engineer, to be submitted to the boards of directors.

Along These Lines

The announcement said the management proposal suggests settlement along these lines:

—"Future joint use of transmission lines.

—"Continued maximum use of present facilities and no construction of new ones which would increase costs through idling of existing facilities.

—"Rapid construction of the 230,000 volt transmission line from Fort Randall Dam to a junction in east central Nebraska.

—"Planning and co-ordination in the construction of future generating facilities.

—"Development of power supply rates."

Much Colder, Snow Heading This'a Way

Much colder weather, accompanied by snow, was expected to spread eastward across Nebraska Tuesday and cover most of the state lightly by Tuesday night.

High readings were expected to be 20 to 25 in the northwest to 40 in the extreme southeast. Monday's highs ranged from 40 at Lincoln and Omaha to 47 at Imperial.

Light rain was forecast for the eastern part of the state.

Below Normal Temps

The five-day forecast predicted temperatures three to seven degrees below the normal highs of 37 in the west to 32 east.

Light rain over the weekend brought .45 of an inch of moisture to Lincoln and ranged up to .70 of an inch at Crete.

Precipitation in eastern Nebraska included:

Rough Grading, Terracing Of Woods Park OKd

Key Move In Tract's Development

By VIRGIL FALLOON
Star Staff Writer

Rough grading and terracing of Woods Park at 33rd and O was authorized Monday by the City Council as a key move toward developing the 50-acre tract as a park and recreation area.

An appropriation up to $20,000 from the city's contingency fund was approved for the work. Bids will be opened Jan. 29.

Public Welfare Director Emmett Junge said the overall grading project to move some 100,000 cubic yards of dirt "before spring" would permit planting of trees and some seeding by the park department.

He also pointed out that limited development of sports and picnic facilities could also begin.

Picnic Area To Be Expanded

He explained the park department has some excess four-inch pipe that could be used to bring water to the area and that a few fireplaces and tables in the picnic area could be ready by summer.

Upon completion of the seeding, Junge said, the playfield and baseball field would be usable and a temporary, inexpensive backstop could be installed.

Councilman Pat Ash said the completion of the rough grading work would stimulate the activity of a "good number of persons and groups interested in the park's development."

'To Promote Enthusiasm'

Mayor Bennett Martin agreed the initial grading would "promote enthusiasm" for further development.

"This (rough grading) is the minimum that should be done immediately," Joe W. Seacrest, park board member, told the Council. "In a few years, it will unfold as a beautiful park."

Noting the generosity of Mrs. George H. Rogers and the Frank M. Woods family which made purchase of the park site possible 10 years ago, Seacrest said, "If grading and tree planting had been done then, the city would have something there now."

Plans for the development of Woods Park, prepared by Clark & Enersen, local architects and site planners, have been approved by the Council.

Cost Estimate $835,130

The plan with cost estimates of $835,130 has been broken down into 11 areas for long-range development, including swimming pool, tennis courts, baseball diamond, play field and picnic area.

The grading costs will be taken from the contingency fund because of insufficient money in park funds.

Junge said about $500 would be left in the Woods Park fund after payment of the $1,500 fee to Clark & Enersen for developing the preliminary park plans.

The City Park and Recreation Board had urged the rough grading work be done before spring, noting it was impossible for the park department or any other individual or agency "to start any of the projects outlined in the plan... until the overall grading is accomplished."

All Council members were present for the afternoon session, but Al DuTeau was excused from the morning session.

2nd U.S. Satellite Try Set

... Paper Reports

BALIMORE (AP) — The Army's Jupiter rocket will be used this week, probably Wednesday in a second attempt to launch a U.S. earth satellite, the Baltimore Evening Sun said Monday.

Quoting a "usually well informed source," the paper said the decision to use the Jupiter was made when officials ruled that the rocket testing range at Cape Canaveral, Fla., should be made "available" this week to the Army, rather than the Navy.

There have been unconfirmed reports from Washington recently that another satellite launching attempt was scheduled for the Florida base this week, that it probably would come Wednesday, and that it presumably would be the second of the Navy's three-stage Vanguard rockets.

A. J. ZUICK

ZUICK NEW SOUTHWEST CENTER HEAD

A. J. Zuick Monday night was named president for the coming year of the Southwest Community Center.

Also elected to office by the center's board of directors were Dr. Mary Bitner, vice president; Mrs. Alva Anderson, secretary; and Robert Koudale, re-elected treasurer.

At the annual meeting held prior to the board meeting, the center named Ed Waltz as a new member of the board, and re-elected these six members to the board: Zuick, Mrs. Anderson, Koudale, Mrs. Ernest Sellmeyer, Dean Weimers and Mrs. Glen Johnston.

"Awards of merit," the first such to be presented by Southwest Center, were given to H. H. Lockwood, for longtime volunteer service with the center, and to Mrs. Hazel Abel for assistance in the purchase of a lot for use as a ball diamond for the center.

Miss Dorothy Pile, executive director of the center, reported to the meeting that total attendance for the year was 25,184. She cited the monthly "family nights" which drew from 150 to 200 residents of the area as "one of the high spots of the program during the past year."

Also reported were all standing committees of the center and teachers and leaders of each of the groups at the center, which is a Lincoln Community Chest agency.

Report On Fire Rating Due Soon

The National Board of Fire Underwriters' report on progress made by Lincoln to improve its fire defenses is expected "within three weeks," Mayor Bennett Martin told the City Council Monday.

The Fire Underwriters' check was made last week, but its representatives gave no indication as to findings, Martin said.

However, city officials are confident that the city will retain its Class 4 fire rating.

Station Plans Soon

Meanwhile, Public Welfare Director Emmett Junge said preliminary plans and specifications on the new 17th and Van Dorn fire station would be presented next Monday to the Council.

Plans for the new $60,000 station are being developed by Architect Selmar Solheim.

Emergency financing for the new station was approved last December by the Council.

Pumper Bids To Be Taken

Junge said bids on the new pumper must be taken now so that delivery can be made in late July. He said payment would not be made until the new budget in September.

Martin said the proposed construction of a 24-inch main connecting the A and 51st pumping stations "for better water pressure distribution" was okayed by the Fire Underwriters representatives.

Public Works Director D. L. Erickson had proposed priority for the connecting main in preference to two elevated water reservoirs.

Defense Budget Given Big Boost

WASHINGTON (INS) — President Eisenhower called Monday for a $39,779,000,000 defense budget dominated by a 397 million dollar increase in missiles to offset advancing Soviet rocketry.

The budget — 918 million dollars larger than the one for the present fiscal year ending June 30 — provides an extra 274 million dollars for research and a 518 million dollar pay raise for servicemen to halt the serious loss of trained technicians.

Broader Authority

It also gives Defense Secretary McElroy unprecedented authority to exploit scientific breakthroughs by shifting money — up to two billion dollars — from outmoded arms to "weapons that show a demonstrated superiority." Traditionally, Congress has specifically earmarked all appropriations.

The budget allocates 340 million dollars for creation of a space agency which will develop earth satellites and anti-missile missiles independently of the armed services.

Although the $3,314,000,000, for missiles include little more than a 10 per cent increase, the Pentagon said that actually about four billion dollars has been added to overall spending to counter the Russian threat.

This figure includes a $1,270,000,000 supplemental request, submitted to Congress last week. It originally was allocated to the new 1959 budget but advanced to the 1958 budget in response to the Sputniks.

"Non-Essentials"

Room for the four billion dollar increase in rocket-age "hardware" and research has been made by a substantial decline in "non-essential" defense spending.

This is reflected in an 83,000-man drop in military personnel—from 2,608,000 to 2,525,000 — and a decline in planes, 1,214 for the Air Force — from 22,057 to 20,843 — and 828 for the Navy — from 10,654 to 9,826.

Ike's Proposed Conservation Cut Attacked

Nebraska agriculture leaders expressed concern Monday night over President Eisenhower's proposed cut in agricultural conservation funds as called for in his 1958 budget request to Congress.

It is "a backward step" brought on by pressure for new defense funds, George Spidel of Lincoln, master of the Nebraska State Grange, said.

"The job is not completed," he said, pointing out that the program was carried on in the national interest as benefit not only to the farm population but to all Americans.

"There will be a storm of protest throughout the country," he predicted.

'Unfortunate'

Pearle Finigan of Lincoln, National Farmers Organization head, said, "It is unfortunate that the President in an all-time record budget would slash a long-time proven program."

"As in the past," Finigan said, "I believe he has been ill-advised on desirable farm programs."

"It is false economy to reduce worthy programs rather than eliminate wasteful spending and unneeded federal facilities," Finigan added.

'Scapegoat'

Two other agriculture leaders, who didn't wish to be quoted, hit at the proposal as an effort to make agriculture "the scapegoat" in the Administration's efforts to increase defense funds without exceeding the national debt or producing an unbalanced budget.

The political effects will be many, one suggested.

Charles Marshall of Avoca, president of the Nebraska Farm Bureau Federation, will Monday declined comment.

The Legislative Council office at the State Capitol Monday received the first automobile contract purchase agreement which it had requested Nebraskans to send in for study by the Legislative Committee on Installment Loans and Retail Credit Practices.

Committee Chairman Sen. Mervin Bedford of Geneva made the request last Friday following a meeting with representatives of the attorney general's office and the State Banking Department.

Bedford said the committee "has been apprised of many practices in the financing of new and used automobiles in the state, which result in the imposition of excessive and probably illegal charges on the buyer."

Bedford and Legislative Council Research Director Dr. Jack W. Rodgers invited all persons who feel they have been "subjected to such excessive and unfair charges to bring or send a copy of their purchase contract" to the Legislative Council office.

Copies of the contracts will be made and the contracts returned to the person sending them in, no names will be made public and the entire procedure kept in "strictest confidence", Dr. Rodgers said.

He added that it is hoped the committee will receive many such contracts in order to give members an opportunity for a full study of the reported practices.

Dr. Rodgers said the committee can do nothing about any illegal charges which may have been made against individuals, but obtaining such information will help in the possible writing of remedial legislation to be acted upon in the 1959 Legislature.

Trinity Lutheran's Negotiations Complete For School Tract

Final negotiations have been completed by the Trinity Lutheran Church board of trustees for the purchase of an 18-acre tract of land, located between Vine and Holdrege east of 56th, the church's voters' assembly was told Monday night.

Actual conveyance of the property, costing about $12,000 and special assessments, will take place on or before Feb. 1.

"It is hoped that such land can be used either to expand the present Trinity Lutheran School or that a consolidated Lutheran school may some day be built on this site," Carl Kamprath, chairman of the board of education said.

To Leave Downtown

A school expansion planning committee had earlier studied the matter of building and relocating a new Trinity Lutheran School and recommended relocation away from the downtown area at 13th and H, where the school has been located since 1886.

Plans for moving into a more active school expansion campaign during 1958 became certain as the voters approved the appointment of a school building committee. This group will serve as an action committee to move from the planning to the building phase of a parochial school expansion program.

Members of the committee include Elmer Schroeder, Donald L. Lohrbach, Carl Kamprath, Victor Schmieding and Roland A. Luedtke.

Membership Climbs

Membership of the church was reported to have increased for the sixth consecutive year now consisting of 2,325 baptized members of which 1,774 are communicant members. There was a gain in membership of 57 over 1956.

Trinity Lutheran's 165 public services were attended by a total of 67,479. Average attendance at the two morning services was 1,058.

Treasurer Wilbur Baack reported total all-purpose receipts for 1957 amounted to $101,170.00 of which $85,007.00 was contributed to the general fund. The 1958 budget was set at $105,000.00 compared with $97,000.00 in 1957. This includes the operation of Trinity Lutheran School which has an enrollment of 150 students and maintains kindergarten through 9th grade.

An evangelism committee, to be supervised by the members-at-large of the church council, was approved at the church's first quarterly meeting of the Voter's Assembly Monday night.

At the annual meeting in December, Martin Stohlmann was elected vice president of Trinity Lutheran. Wilbur Baack was re-elected treasurer. Holdover officers include L. A. Lohrbach, president; Wayne Koop, secretary; and Roland A. Luedtke, stewardship director.

Pastors of Trinity Lutheran are the Rev. F. Worthmann and the Rev. Carl Zahrt.

Film Great Lasky Dies At Age 77

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (AP) — Jesse L. Lasky, 77, one of the founding fathers of the motion picture industry, collapsed and died in the Beverly Hilton Hotel Monday.

The movie pioneer, who started out in life as a cornet player, had just finished lecturing to a literary group on his own book, "I Blow My Own Horn," when he fainted at the motor entrance of the hotel.

His death broke up the trio of film giants—Lasky, Cecil B. De Mille and Samuel Goldwyn—who were instrumental in establishing Hollywood as the film capital of the world. They formed the Jesse Lasky Feature Play Co. which sent De Mille to Hollywood in 1913 to make "The Squaw Man" in celluloid.

Later Lasky formed the famous players-Lasky Co., the forerunner of Paramount Studio.

During his long career in the movies Lasky in the silent era helped bring to stardom such film players as Garbo, Clark Gable, Duke, Fanny, Blanche Sweet, Wallace Reid, Ina Claire and Victor Moore.

During succeeding years those under the Lasky banner included Cary Grant, the Marx Brothers, Bing Crosby, Eddie Cantor, Marlene Dietrich, Clara Bow, Gloria Swanson, Richard Dix, Gary Cooper and Harold Lloyd.

forecasters. They foresee individual income taxes producing an additional $2,300,000,000 next year, and a $700,000,000 increase in postal rates forthcoming from a congress that has been reluctant to provide even a smaller boost in the past.

Of next year's total spending of about $73,900,000,000, Eisenhower plans to put $45,900,000,000 into "protection." This represents an increase of $965,000,000 and covers military operations of the Pentagon, the atomic energy program, stockpiling strategic goods, expanding defense production and military aid and defense support for friendly nations.

Statehood Plea

Eisenhower worked no important new undertakings at all into his home front program. But he urged Congress again on such items as:

Statehood for Hawaii and Alaska, home rule for the District of Columbia, more changes in the immigration laws, authority to veto individual items in appropriation bills rather than just the entire bill.

The budget made provision for pay hikes for government workers. It asked for four million dollars to help with the Olympic winter games in 1960, and more money for American participation in the world fair at Brussels, where Russia is bidding to outshine the United States.

Eisenhower went along with recommendations of a federal-state action committee, on which governors serve with federal officials, for turning over vocational education and construction of sewage facilities to the states, along with part of the local telephone service tax the federal government now collects. He asked Congress to make the shift effective in 1960.

Fee Hike Proposed

Once again, the chief executive urged that government services to the public be put on more of a pay-their-own-way basis. He proposed a hike in patent fees, higher taxes on aviation fuels, interest rates on government loans high enough to meet costs.

In addition, he recommended that Congress revise grant programs to states, to reduce the federal share of expenses for hospital construction, help for the needy, and schools in areas where there are large numbers of federal employees.

Equal Pay . . . Equal Work

To "improve the welfare of working men and women," Eisenhower repeated bids for legislation to assure equal pay for equal work and enlarge the coverage of the minimum wage and unemployment compensation laws. He said he would have a special message later on amending the Taft-Hartley labor law and the "registration and safeguarding of union as well as welfare and pension funds."

The President asked Congress, too, for prompt action on legislation to control advertising along the new interstate highway system.

For small business, he again urged tax revisions he said would be helpful without much loss of revenue and permanent status for the federal small business administration.

A weekend farmer himself, Eisenhower proposed a $300,000,000 cut in spending on agriculture and agricultural resources in the fiscal year ahead.

Priest Dies

BERGAMO, Italy (AP)—Don Severino Vitali, the bricklayer-priest, died from a heart attack in Osia Sopra village where he built free homes for the poor. He was 56.

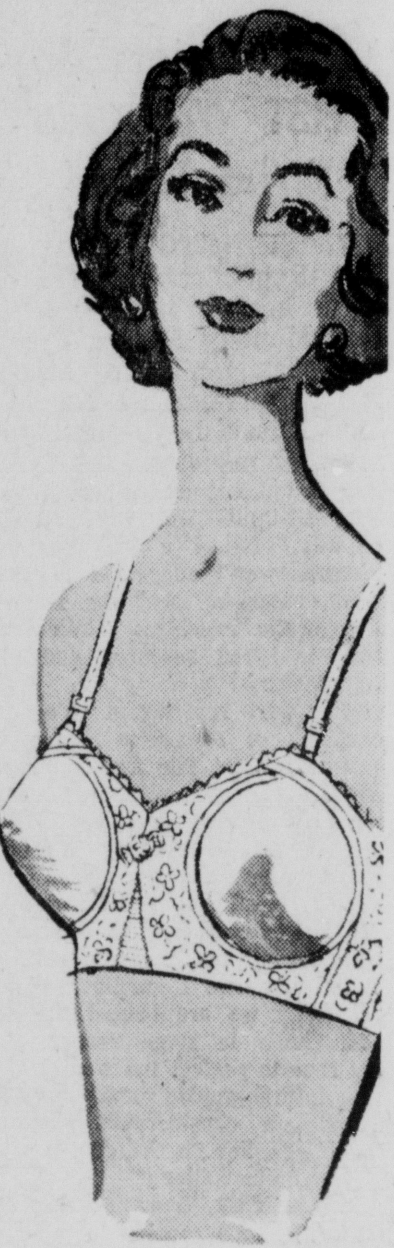

In 1950, soon after he was transferred to the village of 1,200, he founded his "Society of Volunteers of Action and Sacrifice."

He used the society to obtain gifts of land and offers of volunteer labor to build homes for the poor and unemployed. Some even came from nearby larger towns to live in his rent-free community.

The tall, grey-haired priest pitched in and laid bricks, building 100 houses that were divided into 250 small apartments.

Ike Urges $3.9 Billion Foreign Aid Program To Reinforce Free World

... Soviets Triple-Threat Is Cited

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower Monday proposed a new $3,940,000,000 foreign aid program designed to reinforce the free world against a Soviet triple-threat of "open armed attack, internal subversion and economic domination."

The total is a billion dollars more than Congress voted for foreign aid last year, and 86 millions more than Eisenhower asked for.

Under Eisenhower's new request for the fiscal year starting July 1, 50 or more nations would receive military, economic and technical aid. This will be the 12th straight year of the U.S. foreign aid program.

Eisenhower served notice in his budget message that he plans to seek soon a special fund of 200 million dollars to start arming America's European allies with 1,500-mile range missiles. The first such intermediate range rockets, designed to carry nuclear warheads, are due to be sent to Britain around the end of the year.

Destructive
"The composition of free world forces and the equipment with which they are provided," the President told Congress, "must be designed for the needs of an era of increasingly destructive weapons with far-reaching range."

But Eisenhower declared it is also "critically necessary" to provide economic grants and loans to many lands because the Soviets exploit poverty, ignorance and despair in their drive for domination.

"Conquest by this route," he asserted, "is no less menacing to us and other free nations than conquest by military force."
The President's request for new aid money includes $1,800,000,000 for military assistance in the form of guns, missiles and other equipment plus 865 million dollars for support of the economies of nations which like Korea carry a military burden beyond their own economic capacity. This adds up to a total of $2,665,000,000 for direct or indirect military aid for commitment in the next fiscal year.

Development
For overseas economic aid and financing Eisenhower asked $1,275,000,000. This includes 625 million dollars for the development loan fund established last year to finance long range projects abroad, 164 million dollars for technical co-operation in such fields as the improvement of agriculture and public health and 186 million dollars for a variety of other types of assistance.

The grand total of almost four billion dollars is 86 million dollars more than Eisenhower requested for foreign aid a year ago.

The funds which actually will be spent on foreign aid in the next fiscal year will come not only from new appropriations but also, perhaps mostly, from appropriations already granted by Congress. The President put the spending total for the new fiscal year at $3,940,000,000—an increase of 119 million dollars over the estimate for the current year ending June 30.

In connection with the operations still planned for the current year, Eisenhower said that to fulfill anticipated needs growing out of agreements at the December Atlantic alliance meeting in Paris "an additional amount of up to 200 million dollars for procurement of more missiles and other new equipment is covered by the allowance for proposed legislation and contingencies for the fiscal year 1958."

To Cut Expenses

WASHINGTON (INS)—President Eisenhower Monday submitted to Congress an Agriculture Department budget designed to cut expenses in fiscal year 1959 by 345 million dollars.

Total spending for the government's far-flung farm programs would be reduced to $4,981,000,000 through savings by the multi-billion-dollar Commodity Credit Corporation.

Mr. Eisenhower said he will ask for lower price supports and a 100 million dollar cut in the agricultural conservation program, but said these savings will not reduce actual spending until the 1960 fiscal year.

He also will ask Congress to raise interest rates on loans to rural electric co-operatives above the current 2 per cent limit and allow the groups to seek financing from private lending agencies.

A major reduction in the 1959 farm spending program would be made on savings on purchases of dairy products, scheduled to drop to 75 per cent of parity next April 1.

Tough Sledding

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower's billion-dollar program to preserve and extend the nation's educational resources, outlined to Congress, may be in for tough sledding on Capitol Hill.

Some administration officials feel Congress won't accept the program at face value. And they fear it will get off the same heated legislative hassle that killed school construction bills the last two years.

One official put it this way: "Some congressmen are going to want to balloon it clear out of shape, particularly in the field of scholarships. Others are going to be dead set against federal aid to education in any form."

"Almost certainly, anything that comes out in the form of a law is going to be a compromise."

In his budget message, the President said he would detail the legislative program in a later message to Congress. This is what his plan calls for:

A billion dollars in federal aid, spread out over four years and including 10,000 scholarships and 1,000 or more graduate fellowships a year, and matching grants to states for the selection, guidance and training of outstanding students. Emphasis would be on the teaching of foreign languages, of science and mathematics.

Watch Swiped

VALLEY FORGE, Pa. (AP)—Some one has stolen George Washington's watch.

The timepiece—a silver heirloom with a key winder and a misplaced crystal—disappeared on New Year's Day from the display table in Washington's headquarters at Valley Forge National Park.

Guard W. C. Potts said the thief apparently worked loose a piece of wire mesh across a door and edged into the second floor room where the watch and other Washington mementos were on display.

Fire Dept. Must Meet Corporation Standards

A volunteer fire department which incorporates in Nebraska must comply with requirements of law governing corporations, Atty. Gen. C. S. Beck held Monday.

Legal requirements for non-profit corporations include making annual reports and paying an annual fee to the secretary of state.

Secretary of State Frank Marsh had asked for the opinion, with particular reference to a Pleasant Dale fire department which incorporated in order to qualify for a private rather than a governmental loan.

Marsh had asked whether the fire department should be excused from the legal requirements of corporations because it was considered a subdivision of the village government of Pleasant Dale.

Expanded Housing At Boys' State Proposed At Meeting

A plan to house more boys by using dormitory facilities at the University of Nebraska Agriculture campus was proposed at the annual meeting of the Nebraska Boys' State officers at the Cornhusker Hotel Monday.

Under the new plan, enrollment at the Boys' State tentatively scheduled for June 15 through June 21 would be increased from 300 to 350, giving a larger number of boys an opportunity to participate.

In other business, the officers re-elected Nebraska Supreme Court Judge Edward F. Carter, president for 1958.

Theodore W. Metcalfe, one of the founders of the organization, told the members the primary purpose of Boys' State was to encourage interest in government.

"We need statesmen as well as scientists," he said.

Approximately $11,500.00 was spent last year by the Boys' State organization, Secretary R. C. Patterson reported.

The cost of feeding the 300 Nebraska high school juniors was about $1,000 more in 1957, he reported. This extra expense, he explained, was due mainly to the remodeling which was going on at the ag campus, where the boys were headquartered. This necessitated setting up extra equipment and transportation of meals from the downtown Student Union.

Agreement

THE HAGUE (INS)—The Dutch government announced that agreement "in principle" has been reached to establish NATO guided missile bases on Dutch soil, if necessary.

$9,911,339 State's December Outlay

Warrants drawn on the state of Nebraska during December totaled $9,911,339, including $3,261,832 for highway expenditures, the State Tax Commissioner's office reported Monday.

Of the highway total, $1,764,105 came from federal funds, it was pointed out.

Assistance expenses totaled $1,577,445, of which $979,098 was provided by the federal government.

State spending has totaled $65,840,391 in the first six months of the biennium, including $19,669,459 in federal funds.

Seward Man Cleared In Colvert Case

A 26-year-old Seward, Neb., man was given a lie detector test Monday in connection with the shotgun murder Dec. 1 of a young Lincoln service station attendant, but the man was later released.

County Sheriff Merle Karnopp said the man tested was "cleared." Karnopp said he had been questioned about the slaying of Robert Colvert in December, but was not given a lie detector test at that time.

This brings to 18 the number of persons given lie detector tests since Colvert's body was found on a county road north of Lincoln in the early-morning hours. He apparently was robbed at the Crest Service Station at 1545 Cornhusker and then driven to the county road and shot with a shotgun. Authorities are still searching for the person or persons responsible.

Bennet Man, Hurt In 3-Death Crash, Said Improving

Paul Helms, 21-year-old Bennet man, who was injured in a one-car accident near Sterling on Dec. 28, was reported "improving satisfactorily" in a Lincoln hospital.

Hospital authorities said that Helms, who was unconscious for several days after the accident, was for the most part conscious.

He underwent surgery following the accident, they said, to remove wood particles from his head apparently received when struck by a wooden railing in the accident.

Helms was injured and three other men were killed when a car driven by another Bennet man, 25-year-old Frank Holdsworth, crashed through a bridge railing on Highway 41 and plunged into five feet of water in Baker Creek. Holdsworth suffered minor injuries.

Park Action Taken

The City Council has taken a commendable step in approving an expenditure of up to $20,000 out of the contingency fund for grading of the Woods Park tract at 33rd and O. This step is significant not just in what it alone accomplishes but in what it stands for.

Once the grading has been done, other things can follow such as the planting of trees and establishment of a baseball field. The mere beginning of work on the park will be an incentive to keep the job going until the full potential of the tract has been realized.

There is a feeling that one thing which has held up development of the park has been the fact that it was in such a raw state. Part of the land was even being used for commercial purposes which will now be stopped for a distinct improvement to the beauty of the area.

The grading and some plantings will give the people more of a concept of what the park has to offer than can be gleaned from the naked piece of property which the area has been to date. And what limited use of the park that will follow this preliminary work will create interest in further development.

The grading actually represents only a very small part of the nearly $1 million improvement program planned for Woods Park but it is a good start and about as far as the Council can go at this time. With this step taken, it will be up to the Council at the next city budget sessions to determine if progress at 33rd and O is to be continued. But there is hope now that apathy or whatever it has been that has delayed the park development will not be found in the years ahead.

Not Only Ones Wrong

Out of the welter of finger pointing and concern in Washington over this country's failure to remain out in front of Russia in the matter of defense, and command of the sky, it is beginning to appear that the brass hats in general and the Pentagon in particular are on their way to becoming the whipping boy.

They have received blows from their critics. They have been ordered by President Eisenhower to cease jeopardizing national security by their interservice rivalries. Admiral Hyman Rickover, father of the atomic submarine who himself was passed over for promotion and almost forced out of the service for his non-conformist ideas, scored the Pentagon mentality and asserted that technical facts do not recognize rank and seniority. Col. Nickerson was a court martialled for trying to circumvent his superiors in defense of the Army's missile program. Senator Symington charged that $50 billion of the past $75 billion plunged into defense was wasted by bad thinking. Last week Lt. Gen. James M. Gavin, Army missiles chief, resigned because of defense department and Pentagon frustrations.

In the light of developments these men plus others whose experiences were similar have been vindicated for their freshness of thought while their Pentagon superiors have been badly second guessed.

It is a wholesome development to shake the men in high places. It is one of the essentials in preparing the nation to meet its challenge. Certainly our efforts to vault into the space age will come to little if men who have not yet gained the new concepts are to direct the operation under old values.

But the nation will make a grievous error if it oversimplifies the national problem by blaming it all on a group of stuffy, outdated generals and admirals. The fault of looking backward currently is a general American plague and it extends from the State Department to Main Street. It just reveals how inadequately prepared is this nation both in concept and intellectual training for the demands of the scientific age.

Boyle's Pointed Remark

Bernard Boyle, Nebraska Democratic National Committee man, handed the state Democratic party its most lethal weapon when he told his

Younger Generation

By WILLIAM O. DOBLER

Stories have been popping up from across the country in recent weeks dealing with the activity of high school and early college age boys in the field of rocket launching. The latest such story came right from Lincoln where two 17-year-old boys and one 18-year-old sent a home-made rocket some 600 feet into the air at a speed of about 600 miles per hour. Two days of labor and $1.50 in costs went into the rocket adventure of the three young men. While lacking the complexity of the U.S. Vanguard rocket, the Lincoln instrument was also quite a contrast to the government project in time of success and cost.

Three months ago, or before Russia launched her Sputnik, events such as the one involving the three Lincoln youths would never have seen the public light. We don't know, but perhaps the young men would not even have conducted their experiment if world conditions were the same today as they were last fall. But such things as young men's activities in the field of science are a good indication of how the world and the way people live are changing. Things which motivated young people 10 or 20 years ago and developments which shaped their thought are no longer of the same importance to young people of today. There seems today to be a much wider range of activity for young people and a great many more interests. At the same time, things for young people have become somewhat more complex or advanced. The present generation of school students are comparatively free from any restraints so far as their interests, activities and ambitions are concerned. They are guided by standards of society which permit a much more informal and unorthodox approach to matters than was the case in times past.

Practically gone from today's scene are any automatic limitations on young people because of age. True, they generally don't start school until they have reached the familiar age of six and don't vote for president until they are 21 but that is about as far as age limits go. The age to marry is different for all and, on an average, is going down. The driving age varies from 16 to 18 and will never go anywhere but down. Few children are told any more they can't do this or that until they are 21 years old. Advice has replaced law in many areas of parental jurisdiction.

There are a great many people who think the root of all evil lies at the feet of this gradual change in society. They believe that to slacken the reins of control means to drive humanity over a cliff and to certain destruction. If carried to an extreme, perhaps the relaxation would be cause for such alarm but it does not seem that such a dangerous stage has been reached or is necessarily inevitable. What it has done is place more responsibility upon young people and brought about maturity at a much greater rate than in past years. Many of the difficulties experienced with young people today stem not from the fact that they have not been properly disciplined but from the failure to recognize that they possess the means for sound judgment. Too often, the abilities of young people are underestimated. While they are given less regimentation and more opportunity, they are not permitted to share in the results of this development which is their own conclusion from their own analysis.

It seems a natural evolution that the age of maturity should decline. This evolution would probably be even much faster than it is if it were more clearly recognized and accepted for what it could accomplish. In reality, it means a substantial increase in the years of productivity of any single generation. It means a more imaginative approach to problems and greater confidence that the solutions will be found. It inspires boldness, comprehension and understanding in a manner that can hardly help but materially strengthen and improve the state of the world in the future.

leaders at week end that the Republican party, no matter how hard it may work, has the wrong idea of what the country needs. The more it runs the shop the worse off the shop is going to be.

The charge might be passed off under other circumstances and in other times as just an expected utterance of a rival party that is out and would like to get back in, but for the fact that currently there are so many grass roots Republicans who unasily feel the same sentiments. Under the circumstances the spark of such a neat and pointed summarization could easily start a prairie fire of great political consequence, one that could see thousands of erstwhile Nebraska Republicans voting the Democratic ticket.

The six years of national Republican leadership has been disappointing to many of its loyal supporters who expected so much good news and got so much bad news. The administration didn't balance the budget. Instead it spent more. Agriculture got greatly worse rather than better. Inflation cruised on, wearing a Republican label even more ostentatiously than those of former Democratic administrations. And despite all the money we spent Russia moved out in front spectacularly in the fields of science, military prowess and international economics. In the light of those tremendous costs and losses, offset lamely by administration victories for Tidelands oil, for less reclamation plus gallant but indecisive fights to kill off the TVA, to pass a natural gas bill the public would stomach and to help private enterprise by handing a fat public concession to one private utility synthesized for the occasion into the Dixon-Yates corporation, the average prudent small time Republican has been forced to dwell on the disturbing thought that his party has been lacking in concept and cannot discern in these new and perilous times that which is of first importance and that which represents what once might have been important but no longer is.

The Boyle statement drove deeply into a vulnerable GOP spot. But Mr. Boyle and his fellow Democrats are to be reminded that summarizations alone do not win elections. It will take an extensive piece of leg work to get a Democratic prairie fire out of the party matchbox. Presently the party has two things the match and the prairie.

Metric System

Advocates of international use of the metric system for weights and measurement gained a major victory when Japan joined up, abandoning use of the British system of pounds, quarts and yards.

It cannot be considered a rejection of western culture each time the metric system gains another user. It is rather that measurement is more easily handled by tens, and consistency is more desirable than catch-as-catch-can. In the general task of bringing the world together it is desirable to unify any number of systems and no nation should hold out for its own simply because it is its own.

Dulles Approved By Eisenhower

WASHINGTON — John Foster Dulles, almost 70 years old and miraculously recovered from a serious cancer operation, began the year 1958 by laying before President Eisenhower his resignation as Secretary of State.

It was a sincere, courageous, but personally pathetic gesture.

Being Secretary of State has been the crowning ambition of Foster Dulles' life. As a small boy, he looked forward to the day when he could follow in the footsteps of his grandfather, John Foster, Secretary of State under President Benjamin Harrison, a Republican. As a young man he served as assistant to his uncle, Robert E. Lansing, a Democratic Secretary of State under Woodrow Wilson.

The first thing Dulles did when he finally achieved his great ambition was to call all State Department personnel together and tell them how he was following in the footsteps of his grandfather and uncle.

Since then Dulles has shown flashes of great personal brilliance. Diplomats who talk with him say he has a great personal grasp of foreign affairs. But he has failed to get teamwork. He has failed to build morale. He has paid more attention to GOP isolationists on Capitol Hill than to leadership abroad.

And slowly, American prestige has sunk to one of its lowest ebbs in history.

As Dulles went to see the President, French Foreign Minister

Pinaud was telling a group of Americans that American policy would be based on "quicksand" as long as John Foster Dulles remained in office. The biggest contribution Dulles could make to allied unity, he said, would be to resign.

"GREATEST SECRETARY OF STATE"—IKE

Dulles didn't know about this statement, but he did exactly that. He offered to resign. He told Eisenhower he would be 70 years old in a few months, had been Secretary of State for five years. "Now that the Russians have launched their Sputniks," Dulles' friends quote him as telling the President, "I know the Democratic attacks on me will increase. So perhaps you should look for a new, younger Secretary of State who will not be a liability to your foreign policy."

Eisenhower told Dulles what he has told several other people about Dulles, that he considered Dulles "the greatest Secretary of State in history."

According to Dulles' friends, he added: "No one is going to force me to fire you."

Eisenhower also said he didn't know where he'd get another Secretary of State. Dulles finally agreed to carry on, but told the President that if his health got worse he would quit at the end of the congressional session, with enough notice so the President could find a successor.

Generals Actually Critical Of Ike

WASHINGTON — The Defense Department is making some very curious moves with respect to the service officers who are called as witnesses by the Senate Preparedness Subcommittee and put under oath to tell the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth.

The dilemma is an old one of course. The officers must not lie to the Congress; yet when they expose their differences they often appear to be in opposition to their commander-in-chief, the President of the United States.

It is perhaps more of a problem now, when the President is a career military man and therefore almost bound to experience an unusually keen emotional reaction to such a situation.

Right now, two officers considered by their respective services to be among their best and most dedicated brains are featured in incidents about which there is much sober comment here.

One is already lost to the Pentagon at this critical time: Lieut. Gen. James M. Gavin, chief of Army Research and Development. After blunt testimony before the Preparedness subcommittee, he said it did not help a man to be "frank and straightforward" in testifying before congressional committees and that he had decided to retire.

At this point Secretary of the Army Wilber M. Brucker moved in a manner precisely calculated to force any man of honor to go through with that retirement. Brucker publicly offered Gavin a fourth star and a choice of two major army assignments if he would continue the brilliant career begun as a private in 1924. The Army secretary is not viewed here as offering competition to J. Robert Oppenheimer in the cerebral department and his public utterances have frequently lacked taste. But it is not considered that this remarkable performance was the purely accidental reflex of a thoughtless man. The reverse is true.

Senators close to the situation are satisfied that Brucker's was a planned maneuver designed to force Gavin to retire. They know of their own knowledge that Gavin considered remaining on Brucker's terms until a friend pointed out to him the impossible position in which he would find himself.

The Capitol grapevine goes further. It describes Eisenhower as ordering Brucker to "get Gavin." There is no evidence whatever that this is true. There is equally no evidence that any private, discreet effort to save face on all sides but retain Gavin's services was undertaken.

This week end finds a key Air Force figure, Maj. Gen. Bernard A. Schriever, head of its ballistic missile program, moving up to the firing line. General Schriever, under oath, testified that he regarded the Defense Department's space arms board as a costly duplication of work already performed in this field.

The President has praised the agency in his state of the union message as an example of improved organization. The contrast between the Eisenhower-Schriever views is being headlined as part of "a generals' revolt."

BOB CONSIDINE

Acapulco, Mexico, New U.S. Utopia

NEW YORK—Spent a couple of days in Acapulco, Mex., recently. Next time there I hope to hear the world's loveliest language, Spanish, spoken. The Norte Americanos have landed at Acapulco in greater forces than at Vera Cruz or on Chapultepec. They speak English, or a reasonable facsimile.

And no wonder they've come. It's a nifty spot. Half the graceful homes now being built in the hills above the stunning bay are owned by stateside people. So is the pleasant hotel where we stayed, the Pierre Marques. The Bank of America put up the money for a spectacular new place on a steep incline overlooking the Hong Kong like harbor and city. It has a swimming pool in front of every 2-room bungalow, pre-stocked whisky cabinets, pink jeeps to take you up and down the hill or into town, and no telephones, stock market tickers, or tipping.

The sailfish are sailing real nice, the skin divers populate the reefs—frightening peace-loving sharks, barracuda and moray eels. A superb young Mexican golfer named Antonio Rivas rules Acapulco's 9-hole golf course. The No. 2 man is a mountain goat. Didn't get his name.

Dolores Del Rio came into a party one night at Nancy Oakes's place and conversation was paralyzed. Dolores attained her voting age a bit ago, to put it as gallantly as possible, but she is still one of the most striking looking women alive. She was dressed in the sacks, capes, scarfs and rough beads of Yucatan, two great pale yellow flowers pinned to her radiant black hair.

"How do you stay so beautiful?" A stateside and broadside guest asked the former screen star.

"Simple," she said. "Plenty of exercise, sleep a lot, and fall in love regularly."

Heard an odd story at that party. Cantinflas, the great Mexican clown who does such a fine job in "Around the World in 80 Days," is the national hero of Mexico. He builds clinics, schools, charms millions, gets many write-in votes every time there is an election.

But "Around the World in 80 Days" has not played Mexico, where the people surely would beat in the doors to see it. Seems there's a law which prohibits movie theater owners from charging more than four pesos—32 cents—for a seat. Mike Todd is waiting for a change of administration and, with it, that law. If the new president says "To hell with Miguel Todd," a statement which would involve plagiarism rather than slander) an interesting compromise will set in. Black and white, small-screen prints will be made of that superb picture and these will be shown in Cantinflas' country (at 32 cents a seat) not for a year, a decade or a century. But forever.

LA VERNA HASSLER

Patchwork Prairie Country

You can never really close the garden gate and say that gardening is done for another year. From the time the first seedling appears until the last squash is harvested, there is constant weeding. When the ground is frozen beneath the deep white snow and all life lies fast asleep within the earth, one would seem to gain a respite. But that is not so, for it is then that the seed catalogs arrive. In an instant you begin to plan for the coming garden and chances are it is the best garden you have ever had. At least I find it so. The rows of beans I put on paper are the tenderest and biggest producers. The best tomatoes, scarlet mammoth beauties, grow best on paper also and the yields of sweet corn have reached outlandish proportions beneath my ballpoint pen

Seed catalogs seem to hold some mystic charm. Rambling through the pages renews the faded green of an inactive green thumb. It must be the beautiful colored pictures of fruits and vegetables that take the tarnish off the thumb, not to mention gigantic flowers in delicate shades of the rainbow.

When I plan for the flower garden, I never see the flowers that wilt and die for some unknown reason, I never see the holes eaten by insects through the delicate rosebuds. I see only the lovely full-blown roses that are pictured in the seed catalogs. I never feel the backaches that come from hoeing a garden, but only the comfort of my easy chair—which no doubt contributes to the enjoyment of planning a garden on paper.

Perhaps that is why seed catalogs offer so much pleasure, and gardens planned on paper are so profitable. The toil never shows—the rich rewards of one's labor.

One morning as I was driving down a frozen, bumpy dirt road, I spied two furry brown creatures leaping the ditch several hundred feet in front of me. They bounded across the field into a wheat field where they stood out against the early morning sunrise. Then with quick backward glances, they trotted to the nearest meadowland where they disappeared into the thicket.

They were coyotes, the craftiest of animals that outwit man and hound dogs. Their movements were quick and graceful, with lithe limbs stretching out and pulling deep furred bodies with them like good race horses running the track. I had never seen coyotes at such close range. There is something admirable in these wild, keenly alert beasts.

It was one of those bigger than usual washdays. There were scatter rugs, slip covers, pillow tops and extra tablecloths. I suppose every housewife gets the urge now and then to wash everything within reach. Along about this time of year things begin to show the results of living so much indoors. A whirl in the machine, starching to perk up the sagging seams, and pressing to renew the shape does wonders to slip covers. It gives that clean, clean feeling when the arduous task is completed—sort of a prelude to spring house cleaning.

Having completed the wash, I decided to polish the windows. It seemed they had also acquired a winter film. Had it not been too late, I would have washed the kitchen curtains. When evening arrived and I viewed the sparkling windows that caught and reflected every light, and fingered the starch smoothness of the slip covers, I decided that it was very satisfying to "go overboard" once in awhile in cleaning. I vowed to do it more often.

Picturesque portraits to frame for the keeping...

Children, rosy-cheeked and cherry-nosed, hurrying through the kitchen door from school for ginger cookies and milk...

Pheasants in a graceful arc, winging their way to the hedge-row to roost...

Grandfather, with a young grandson on his knee, recounting school days of yesteryear...

Grandson, with a twinkle in his eye and a curved smile that seems to say, "I don't believe a word of it"...

A winter sunset, tangerine and gold, shading into bronze just before night settles down...

A steaming pot of coffee flanked by a platter of raised doughnuts...

Trees, with frosty coats, out to play with the north wind...

The friend who comes down the street all smiles and says simply, "Hi, neighbor!"...

An old gray barn etched against a somber sky, alone in its creaking misery...

A brilliant star in the west that hangs like a diamond locket... Gay boys and girls on their way to a party all decked out in their Christmas gift finery...

Their mothers and dads nodding approval and agreeing that their post-season empty purses have their richest dividends...

Medicine Chest Security

The sanctity of a man's medicine cabinet is something not lightly to be invaded, and the pharmaceutical people who invaded mine have a lot to answer for.

They did not come right in the house, and in the bathroom, and use fire axes and fumigants on the contents of the medicine cabinet, but they might as well have. They put a piece in the paper, and panicked me into doing their dirty work for them, and before you could say asafetida, there was all the spiritual security of years gone down the drain.

This article the pharmaceutical folks put in the paper said that prescriptions ought not to be kept around after they've done the particular job they were written for, because every case is different and the prescription that cured your hives last year might bring on a mighty bad itch if used on your wife's dandruff next year.

You take a little old bottle of pills that might have been prescribed for your allergy, these people said, and you can't depend on it to cure someone else's allergy, because allergies are pretty personal and private, and no two are the same. This sounded logical enough, because it stands to reason that a fellow who is allergic to, say, elephants, doesn't bat in the same league with the ragweed crew.

Right then was when I let logic get the best of judgment. I emptied the contents of the medicine cabinet down the drain. I had to do it quickly, while my resolution was still strong, because there were years of fond association between me and those bottles, tubes and jars.

My haste was probably a mistake. At least, the plumber said it was. He said he didn't know what chemicals were involved, but they beat a blow torch all hollow for making holes in pipes without leaving a rough edge. What did it must have been that green salve I had been saving since July 4th of '36. The label had peeled off, and I had forgotten what it was for in the first place, but I always figured it might be good for chigger bites, if anyone ever got them.

It gives a man a good feeling to have something around the house that might be good for chigger bites. For that matter, there is a deep sense of security in a medicine cabinet that has been painstakingly filled throughout the years with what's left over from prescriptions. You open the door and look in, and you can tell yourself, "Boy, whatever I get, there's bound to be a cure for it there."

One of the nice things about old prescriptions is that the directions on the bottles get rubbed off after about 10 years, and you aren't bound by some persnickety pharmacist's hide-bound theories. Chances are those little blue pills, for instance, were originally intended for the dogs, to clear up their watering eyes, but by now who knows the difference? You gaze at them, struck by their cerulean purity, and you say to yourself, "There's just the thing, next time I get the epizootics."

Of course, whenever you get sick, some spillover calls the doctor and gets a new prescription, but even that has its good points. There will be one more part bottle of medicine for the cabinet.

Don't you ever do like I did, and dump your old prescriptions. It is a frightening thing to be well, and realize all at once that there isn't a single prescription in the house in case you come down suddenly with a bad case of the vapors.

National Spending

Lincoln, Neb.

Auto Workers Propose A Split of Profits

Industry's Chiefs Shake Their Heads

DETROIT (AP) — The United Auto Workers Union Monday proposed that the auto industry split much of its profits before taxes with employees and customers.

The proposal was sharply criticized by heads of the Big Three—General Motors Corp., Ford Motor Co. and Chrysler Corp. — who, in effect, rejected it.

Ernest R. Breech, Ford board chairman, called Reuther's plan "unrealistic" and said it "strikes at the very roots of the economic system that has made and kept America strong."

Harlow H. Curtsie, GM president, termed it "a radical scheme" and "foreign to the concept of the American free enterprise system."

Chrysler's president, L. L. Colbert, said the UAW proposed "a whole series of new inflationary demands upon the automobile industry."

American Motors Corp. said the proposal was being given "thorough study."

Quarter To Customers
Under UAW President Walter Reuther's plan all industry workers—some 800,000—would share in one-quarter of the melon. Another quarter would go back to car buyers in the form of rebates. The companies would keep the balance.

The split-up would affect all profits above 10 per cent of a company's net capital.

The UAW defined net capital as stockholders' investment plus long term debt.

Reuther said the UAW will demand unspecified wage increases and the profit-sharing plan for employees in contract negotiations. The consumer rebate will be recommended, he added.

Previously announced demands for a shorter work week will be postponed.

Reuther's proposal was the opening salvo in auto-labor negotiations on new contracts this year.

Face to face bargaining begins in earnest about April 1.

Reuther said the union had shelved its demands for a shorter work week and instead was recommending a new bargaining program that "reflects the realities of both our growing domestic difficulties and the increasingly difficult international situation."

Asked at a news conference when he had changed his mind about the shorter work week, Reuther said, "You will notice I have not been beating the drums (for the short work week) since the first Sputnik went up."

Robbery Try Fizzles For War Hero

PEBBLE BEACH, Calif. (AP)—A man who identified himself as a decorated, retired Army officer and war hero was arraigned in Monterey Peninsula Justice Court Monday on a charge of trying to hijack $40,000 of Bing Crosby golf tournament receipts early Monday.

He said he was Lt. Col. Melvin Russell Blair, 42, of Alexandria, Va., shown in Army records to have the Distinguished Service Cross with Oak Leaf Cluster, the Silver Star with two Oak Leaf Clusters, and the Purple Heart.

Blair's bail was put at $50,000 and he was ordered back into court at 10 a.m. Tuesday for setting his preliminary hearing.

Sheriff Victor Tibbs of Salinas said that he had taken a tape-recorded statement from Blair telling of the actual holdup attempt.

Tibbs said Blair was charged with assault with a deadly weapon, armed robbery and first degree burglary.

In the recorded statement Blair said he got to thinking about the quarter of a million dollars he was told was in the tournament safe. "I thought this would be an easy way to get the money."

But the project turned out anything but easy.

City's Area Population 139,000—Baley

On Jan. 1, 1958, there were 139,000 persons in the Lincoln urban area. Of these about 129,000 live in the city limits and the other 10,000 in a zone five miles from the city limits, Arch Baley, general manager of the Lincoln Chamber of Commerce, said Monday.

Speaking to the Lincoln Graphic Arts Assn., Baley said these statistics will exert a vital influence on business conditions in Lincoln during 1958.

The population in the city limits is 30 per cent higher than recorded in the 1950 count and 57 per cent above the 1940 census Baley said, and those living in the five-mile zone outside the city limits have increased by 5,000 or 100 per cent since 1950.

"Agricultural conditions throughout Nebraska, generally speaking, were much better during 1957 than during the dry years of 1955 and 1956," he said, "and it looks good for 1958."

"Lincoln still depends heavily on the state as a whole, although this dependence is diminishing steadily as the payroll is stabilized by the addition of manufacturing, home office insurance and other business enterprises less vulnerable to crop conditions," he said. Baley also said that retail sales in Lincoln during 1957 generally compared well with 1956 and that bank clearings, an indication of business transaction volume, were up considerably.

"At the moment," he said, "there is a general reluctance on the part of business to make long-term commitments for promotional activity, which involves... general enthusiasm for the future."

"Actual current facts do not justify such wait and see or retrenchment attitudes in Lincoln," Baley said.

City Meter Maids To Start Soon After Feb. 1

Police-uniformed women, better known as "meter maids," are to begin work checking downtown parking meters soon after Feb. 1.

In approving the plan Monday, the City Council directed that Safety Director Emmett Junge and Police Chief Joe Carroll proceed with dispatch in the hiring and training of four or five women that will be used.

Junge said the women would be paid $202.50 a month, work a 45-hour week and be furnished uniforms costing about $130.

He said there was sufficient police funds to purchase the uniforms, but that the estimated $3,000 to $6,000 wages until Sept. 1 were not available in the current police budget.

However, the Council directed the meter maid payroll be included in the police budget and that deficit would be covered later in the year by an emergency appropriation.

Junge said the uniform would include uniform coat, skirt, overcoat, and white uniform cap (feminine-style).

Already 12 Applicants

Carroll said the department would begin interviewing applicants immediately. Already some 12 women have applied for the jobs.

The police chief explained that the meter maids would police approximately half of the 1,700 parking meters. The remainder would be covered by three-wheel motorcycle officers.

The five foot patrolmen now assigned to the downtown duty can be utilized for a wider scope of duty in addition to traffic and pedestrian direction at intersections.

Asks Report

Mayor Bennett Martin told Carroll to report on the additional duties for the downtown officers in the shift to meter maids to check meters.

Scottsbluff is presently the only Nebraska city using meter maids though Omaha is considering the idea. Omaha's neighbor, Council Bluffs, Ia., uses meter maids.

Martin said numerous complaints about meter feeding have reached his office and that the meter maids should be the solution to this problem.

Loading Zones In Downtown Shifted; 9 Cut

The City Council approved Monday the shifting of some downtown loading zones, including the deletion of nine loading zones on O.

Five "no parking anytime" loading zones were extended on side streets, but six were deleted, including four on O.

Seven "limited-time" loading zones were added on side arterials in the downtown area, but 10 others were deleted, including five on O.

Four loading zones near fire hydrants on O were also decreased in size under approved resolutions.

The loading zone recommendations were made by Safety Director Emmett Junge following a Council-directed survey of loading zones and other restricted curb parking in the downtown area.

The Council approved a 25-foot curb cut on 15th for the Nebraska State Building Corp., but denied the request for a curb cut on O.

In other action, the Council:

1. Approved Paving District 1536 for Normal Blvd. between 52nd and 54th.

2. Ordered two building removals within 60 days by reason of age and dilapidated condition. Affected are a house at 6404 Hartley and a garage located at the rear of 2012 So. 10th.

Weekend Breakins Solved As 5 Youths Plead Guilty

Weekend breakins at Raymond, Davey and Lincoln were solved Monday and the five young men who admitted being involved all pleaded guilty to burglary charges in Lancaster District Court.

Arraigned before Judge Harry Spencer were: Donald Fank, 19, of the Lincoln Air Force Base; Robert Pruitt, 20, who gave his address as the Milner Hotel; Richard Larry Davis, 17, who gave his address as 1336 D; Herbert Waline, 18, who gave his address as 1735 N; and Charles Sundling, 17, who gave his address as 941 No. 25th.

All except Davis were charged with burglarizing the Davey Tavern early Saturday morning. Davis was charged with burglarizing the Lantz Donut & Baking Co. at 555 No. 27th early Saturday morning.

Raymond Tavern

Chief Deputy County Attorney Dale Fahrbruch said the five youths also admitted being involved in the early-morning burglary Saturday of the Raymond, Neb., Tavern.

Authorities reported about 20 cases of beer were stolen from an ice house at the rear of the Raymond tavern, a quantity of cigarettes from the Davey tavern and about 60 cents worth of cookies from the doughnut shop.

Judge Spencer deferred sentencing all of the youths except Davis, pending a report by the adult probation office. He sentenced Davis, who was on parole from the Kearney Boys Training School, to Kearney for an indefinite period.

Two other weekend breakins remain unsolved. They were at the Cheney, Neb., general store where a cash register containing about $34 in coins was stolen, and at the Hiway Motors Co., 2225 No. 10th, where two pistols, four shotguns, three rifles, an electric shaver and a record player were stolen. The goods were valued at about $445.

SUBURBIA

We're extending farewells this morning, as are Eastridge residents who have been entertaining in courtesy to a family leaving the neighborhood; and also have news of birthday parties, get-acquainted courtesies and out-of-town guests—all in our Eastridge area.

An informal dance in the recreation quarters of the B. R. Greeness home was an event in Eastridge on Saturday evening when Mrs. Greeness was hostess to several couples to honor Mr. Greeness in celebration of his birthday anniversary which was Sunday. Guests on hand to enjoy the festivities were Mr. and Mrs. William Kelly, Mr. and Mrs. Virgil Stewart, Mr. and Mrs. Jim Cradit, Mr. and Mrs. John Jones, Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Magnuson, Mr. and Mrs. Bob Johnson and Mr. and Mrs. Merle Hamilton.

Hear that Mrs. G. R. Scott of Chicago is spending an extended vacation in the suburb where she is a guest of her son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Scott and their four children, Greg, Gary, Jonathan and Julie Ann.

Newcomers to Eastridge are next on our list of news items this Tuesday morning—Settling in their home at 5600 Sunrise Rd., the middle of December were Mr. and Mrs. Charles Roberts and their children, David, Bill and Sue. The Roberts—so we understand—are no strangers in the city for they formerly resided at 3309 South 48th Street.

Complimenting Mrs. Roberts at a "get-acquainted" coffee last Wednesday morning was Mrs. Harold Proctor and included among the guests for the event were neighbors of the honoree.

There was a dinner party at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Hedge on Saturday evening and the party was to compliment Mrs. B. F. Wendt and Mrs. Robert Kinsey in celebration of their recent birthday anniversaries. Included among the nine guests were Mr. and Mrs. William Bock of Hastings.

Eastridge neighbors of Lt. Cmdr. and Mrs. Mahlon Smith and their children, Stewart and Sandra soon will be saying good-bye to the Smith family who will depart from their home at 1015 Eldon Dr. on Jan. 22, to reside in Dallas, Tex. The Smith family has been living in the suburb for about a year.

A host and hostess on Sunday afternoon were Dr. and Mrs. Andrew Mazurak who entertained at an "open house" affair in courtesy to Lt. Cmdr. and Mrs. Smith. The guest list included 18 couples who are close neighbors of the honorees.

A group of the younger set were entertained on Friday afternoon at the home of Mr. and Mrs. O. Vanderwege when Mrs. Vanderwege was hostess at a birthday party honoring her son, Brad, on his fifth anniversary. Enjoying the festivities with Brad were his brothers and sisters, Gary, Derron, Vicki and Jeanine and neighborhood friends who were Dale Domino, Jimmy Rogers, and Reg Nison.

PTA To Hear Panel

When the legislative committee of the Nebraska Congress of Parents and Teachers convenes in Lincoln on Wednesday morning, the agenda will feature a panel discussion on the topic, "Nebraska's Problems—Our Concern."

Mrs. A. E. Hanneman of Lincoln, state PTA legislative committee chairman, will preside at the all-day meeting and will moderate the panel, which will be followed in the afternoon by a general discussion.

Panel speakers and their discussion topics will include: Lester Hunt of the State Department of Education, "District Re-Organization"; Freeman Decker, Commissioner of Education, "School Lands and Funds"; Frank H. Gorman of Omaha University

WE almost believed what we heard this morning—"there's not a THING going on"—but not quite. We played a hunch and staked our all on the Cromwells—Dr. and Mrs. Norman—who are leaving Lincoln soon for Pasadena where Dr. Cromwell will spend the first four months of his year's leave of absence from the University of Nebraska at the California Institute of Technology where he will study spectroscopic techniques. In June Dr. and Mrs. Cromwell will go to England where Dr. Cromwell, a Guggenheim Fellow, will study at University College and Chester-Beatty Research Institute, Royal Cancer Hospital, in London.

We were right about the Cromwells serving as incentives for a variety of activity.

ON Thursday morning Mrs. Cromwell will be honored when Mrs. Burket Graf is a coffee hostess at her home. Twenty-two guests have been invited for the 10 o'clock-to-12 o'clock affair.

AND next Sunday evening, when

Mr. and Mrs. Howard Wilson and Mr. and Mrs. Richard Smith are hosts and hostesses at a buffet supper at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Wilson, the party will compliment Dr. and Mrs. Cromwell.

THE courtesies for Dr. and Mrs. Cromwell dot next week's calendar, also—On Thursday evening, Jan. 23, Dr. and Mrs. Cromwell will be honored informally when Dr. and Mrs. James C. Olson entertain a small group of guests at dinner at their home.

And on the following evening, Friday, Jan. 24, Mr. and Mrs. George Holyoke will pay courtesy to Dr. and Mrs. Cromwell when they are a dinner host and hostess at their home.

HAD some news from Newport, R.I. this morning we think will be of considerable interest—we heard that Mrs. David Olson

NU Dames To Graduate

The University of Nebraska Dames, an organization for the wives of undergraduate students, will hold their mid-winter "graduation" ceremony Thursday evening for the wives whose husbands will receive their degrees this month.

Dr. Floyd Hoover, registrar of the University of Nebraska, will present "diplomas" to the graduating Dames, and guests at the meeting and program will be faculty advisors of the group.

The meeting will be held at 8 o'clock in the auditorium of University High School.

Dear Abby . . .

Takes Two to Tango!

Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I am having trouble with a 38-year-old husband chaser. My husband is in his late fifties and so am I. This old maid husband-chaser goes to our church and since my husband has become active in the church so has she. She horns herself in on every committee he is on and has even joined the choir in spite of the fact that she has no voice at all. At a recent church cabaret dance she lifted my husband bodily out of his chair and tried to drag him to his feet to dance with her. He politely refused saying he didn't go in for dancing. Must I write her a note or should I speak to her about her foolishness?

DISGUSTED WIFE

DEAR DISGUSTED: Neither write—nor speak to her. It takes two to tango—and your husband doesn't dance to her tune. Forget it!

DEAR ABBY: I understand that when a fellow winks at a girl if she likes him she should wink back. I can't wink so I would like to know what I can do instead that will be as good as a wink? I am 13 years old. Thank you.

WINKED AT

DEAR WINKED AT: A smart girl doesn't wink back. She keeps BOTH her eyes wide open.

DEAR ABBY: My boyfriend and I broke up after going together almost two years. On (Agnes Anderson) and the small Chad Olson, will be leaving on Feb. 1 for a five months stay in Europe. Mrs. Olson and Chad will be among a group of Navy families who will be following the fleet—they don't know exactly where they are going, but they'll be on their way. The first stop for Mrs. Olson is Nice, France, where she and Chad will take an apartment. If, when and where they will catch up with Lt. Olson's ship is something no one knows. The plan is to be at

Mrs. Olson and Chad, however, won't be alone in this unpredictable venture—Mrs. Olson will be a member of a four-wife group—all navy wives, whose husbands are with the 6th Fleet, and who hope there is more truth than fiction to the rumor that the first port will be somewhere in Italy—Only time will tell.

FROM Houston, Tex., this morning comes news of the arrival of Linda Sue Pierson on Sunday, Jan. 12. The young Miss Pierson is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Thomas Pierson, and her mother is the former Beth Polhemus, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Polhemus of Holdrege—and Gamma Phi Beta at Nebraska. Dr. and Mrs. F. A. Pierson of Lincoln are the paternal grandparents.

Had Morning Wedding

MRS. RICHARD WESTWOOD

The wedding of Miss Kathryn Vogel, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Montgomery, and Richard Westwood, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. George Westwood of Cleveland, O., took place on Saturday morning, Jan. 11, at St. Mary's Cathedral. The 9:30 o'clock ceremony was solemnized by the Rev. Robert Smith in the presence of members of the family and a small group of guests, and the wedding music was played by Miss Catherine Gillespie, organist.

As her sister's maid of honor, Miss Georgia Vogel wore a ballerina frock in mint green taffeta. The snug bodice and full skirt were sashed in matching taffeta ending in a bustle bow, and she wore a head bandeau of the taffeta. Frocked identically in lavender was the bridesmaid, Miss Marabel Vogel, also a sister of the bride. The attendants wore wrist corsages of carnations in white and frock tones.

Gerald Jeffery of Mt. Clement, Mich., served as best man, and the ushers were Robert Koch, Lewis Jamros and William Womble, all stationed at the Lincoln Air Force Base.

The bride's gown of white lace over tulle and satin was designed in the waltz length. The molded bodice was accented by a scalloped, bateau neckline traced with sequins and pearl beading, and the sleeves were long and tapered. The full skirt was bordered by natural scallops of the lace, and a lace crown, dotted with pearls, held her illusion veil. She carried a white Bible ornamented with white carnations.

The couple will reside at 2924 So. 13th. Mr. Westwood is stationed at the Lincoln Air Force Base.

PTA Meetings Are Scheduled

The monthly meeting of PARK PTA will be held at 7 o'clock Tuesday evening at the school. Guest speaker will be Dr. Paul Bancroft. Nursery care will be provided for pre-school children of the members.

Members of the board of SHERIDAN PTA have planned a meeting for Tuesday morning. The meeting will begin at 9:30 o'clock and will be held in the teachers room of the school.

HARTLEY PTA board members will hold a meeting at 1:30 o'clock Tuesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Sam Dahl, 1240 No. 33rd.

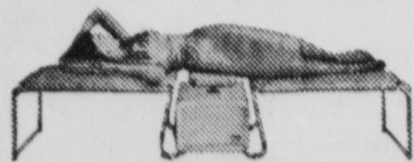

Alumnae Club Plans Meeting

The January meeting of the Sigma Delta Tau Alumnae will be held at 8:30 o'clock Wednesday evening at the home of Mrs. Robert Cohen, 3135 Sheridan.

9,000 Scientists Sign Asking A-Test Halt

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (U)—Nobel Prize Winner Linus Pauling submitted to the United Nations Monday a petition signed by 9,235 scientists calling for an international agreement to stop nuclear bomb tests now.

The scientists of 44 countries include 36 Nobel Prize winners, 101 members of the U.S. National Academy of Sciences, 35 fellows of the Royal Society of London, and 216 members of the Soviet Academy of Sciences.

The 1954 Nobel Prize winner in chemistry told reporters that in his opinion the list of signers "represents the opinion of a majority of the scientists of the world." Dr. Pauling is head of the Division of Chemistry and Chemical Engineering at the California Institute of Technology, Pasadena.

He turned the petition over to Secretary General Dag Hammarskjöld. The U.N. takes no action on such documents but makes them available to member governments on request.

The petition declares:

"Each nuclear bomb test spreads an added burden of radioactive elements over every part of the world. Each added amount of radiation causes damage to the pool of human germ plasma such as to lead to an increase in the number of seriously defective children that will be born in future generations. "So long as these weapons are in the hands of only three powers an agreement for their control is feasible. If testing continues, and the possession of these weapons spreads to additional governments, the danger of outbreak of a catastrophic nuclear war through the reckless action of some irresponsible national leader will be greatly increased."

Referring to the U.S. declaration it is trying to develop a clean hydrogen bomb, Pauling said "it will never be done."

Pauling began circulating the pe-tion last May as an individual. He said the scientists signed as individuals, and no organization of any kind was involved.

The list includes 2,705 signers in the United States, 1,141 in Japan, 535 in India, 174 in Italy, 112 in Norway and 304 in Britain.

Pauling said many more Americans and British agreed with the petition but declined to sign because they were connected with the government.

He explained that there is practically unanimous agreement that nuclear test explosions are causing "some damage. How great is a matter that must be decided by individual consciences."

Big Purchase Of U.S. Bonds Gets Approval

The State Board of Educational Lands and Funds Monday authorized the largest single investment in U. S. government securities it has made in at least three years. The total is $1,177,500.

Half a million dollars was invested in U. S. Treasury bonds maturing in 1970 and returning, with interest and discount, 2.99 per cent.

The rest of the total, part of the permanent school fund, went into bonds maturing in 1972 and returning 3.01 per cent overall.

J. J. Delay, Norfolk banker who is chairman of the board, said the rate of return is "attractive" and

No Pilgrimages

LOURDES, France (U)—Stefan Cardinal Wyszyński, primate of Poland, says he and Roman Catholics of his Communist-ruled country cannot take part in this year's pilgrimages commemorating the 100th anniversary of St. Bernardine's vision of the Virgin Mary.

He said in a letter to Bishop Pierre-Marie Theas of Lourdes that "continual threats and alarms" against the Roman Catholic Church in Poland were the reason "we must stay home to guard the treasure of the faith of the church of God."

the action fulfills the board's duty to make sure its investments are sound.

Whole-Farm Soil Bank Gets 'Terrific Amount Of Interest'

The experimental program under which some Nebraska farmers will be able to deposit their entire farms in the soil bank has generated "a terrific amount of interest, more than anyone anticipated," a State Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation (ASC) official reported Monday.

Robert Webb, state ASC administrative officer, said an informal survey based on estimates by field supervisory personnel, indicated about 600 bids had been received from farmers over the state as of the middle of last week.

"There is no question but that we will get a lot more bids than we ever expected," said Webb.

been directed not to make public the names of bidders until such time as the bids are opened and become binding on the farmer and the government.

The policy was formally adopted by the state ASC committee after the Lincoln County ASC office asked for guidance on whether to release the names to news media.

Auditor Begins Normal School Ledger Check

Assistant State Auditor Merle Humphries started a tour of Nebraska's four State Teachers Colleges Monday to check on their bookkeeping practices as the result of a critical audit made on the normal schools by State Auditor Ray Johnson Nov. 23.

Johnson had charged the colleges with poor bookkeeping practices and had given the State Normal Board until Jan. 1 to report to him on compliance with regulations governing the administration of state funds.

Chief among the criticisms of the colleges was the transfer of some tax funds to maintain dormitories which are supposed to be self-supporting. The amount involved was about $28,000.

In its Jan. 1 report to the auditor, the Normal Board reported the colleges were now complying, or would comply, with all requests of Johnson's office, and asked that certain requests be specifically outlined.

The auditor's office also was critical of certain expense items at the four colleges.

Humphries is to visit with the presidents and bursars of each college to help clear up any misunderstanding.

He started at Wayne State Teachers College Monday, will go from there to Chadron, then to Kearney before returning to Lincoln. The fourth college, Peru, the one which came in for the most criticism, is to be visited last, according to present plans, the auditor's office reported.

12 Signed Here

Herbert Jehle, professor of physics at the University of Nebraska, who worked with Dr. Linus Pauling last year on the appeal, said Monday that the petition is the same as the one circulated in Nebraska in June 1957.

At that time it was signed by 12 University of Nebraska faculty members and two Omahans.

Capitol Trip • Surprise Casserole • Party Treat
Flower Party • Added Bathroom • Greek Lemon Soup

Capitol Idea

Do children in your community get a chance to see your state government in work? Your club or PTA group might give a school a lift. Sponsor a "Class Trip to the State Capitol". On a one-day visit they'll learn a lot, return refreshed. Chances are, the school principal will be happy to cooperate with you. Set up your plans well ahead, to correspond to the Capitol's schedule. Send along several chaperons to assist teacher.

Flower Party

Sure cure for that "tired-of-Winter" feeling...a party with a flower theme! Put artificial flowers from the dime-store in large bouquets about the house. Send invitations on flower-sprigged note paper. Table-favors: Tiny plastic pots with little plants, to carry home and watch 'em grow! Dessert: Ice cream with a fresh pastry rose decorating the top!

Add-a-Room Idea

Few months ago, one hundred representative homemakers from all over America met for a "Congress on Better Living". When asked what improvements they wished to make in their homes, the ladies unanimously asked for a second bathroom. Reminds me that some friends recently turned a large closet into a tiny, compact "powder room" on their first floor.

Quick Casserole Surprise

Practically no work involved in Mrs. Gene Miner of Omaha, Nebraska's favorite main-dish meal: Combine $\frac{3}{4}$ cup uncooked rice, 1 cup chopped celery, 1 large onion chopped, 1 can cream of mushroom soup, 2 soup-cans water, 1-lb. uncooked ground beef, 1 tsp. salt, and 3 Tbsp. soy sauce. Mix well; pour into large greased casserole. Bake 20 minutes at 400 degrees. Reduce heat to 375 degrees. Bake 45 minutes more; serve to six delighted people.

In Hot Water

We gaily use the term "in hot water" as a synonym for being in trouble...yet being out of hot water often causes fretting in a usually-peaceful home! If your present hot water heater doesn't keep you constantly supplied with enough hot water for family baths, dishes, laundry, et cetera, don't fuss. A brand new gas water heater ample enough for all your family needs can be purchased on convenient terms. Talk things over with your local gas company or plumber-dealer.

Noodle-Nibblers

Fast party favorite: Mix one 3-ounce package softened cream cheese thoroughly with one small can deviled ham. Season to please your taste. Roll the mixture into 24 tiny balls; pop 'em into your gas refrigerator. Just before you serve the balls, roll same in one cup broken chow mein noodles. Real treat!

Good Peeling Plan

Georgia C. Victor of Villisca, Iowa reminds us: Always immerse peeled apples, potatoes and peaches in salt water (1 tsp. salt to 1 cup water) before they have a chance to darken. Then they can be chilled for serving.

Trash and Trudging

Nobody likes a trip through the snow to back-yard garbage and trash cans! "Go modern" with a gas incinerator, and banish those chores forever. The gas incinerator disposes of garbage and trash before it accumulates—smokelessly, odorlessly. It gives you and your family a better standard of cleanliness and health. So many benefits—yet it costs very little! See the gas incinerator at your local gas company or gas appliance dealer.

Delicious "Diet Soup"

Mrs. Helen Silvia of Hibbing, Minn., says this Lemon Soup recipe came all the way from Greece. It's fatless, good for folks on diets: Wash $\frac{1}{3}$ cup rice several times. Add slowly to 6 cups boiling chicken, lamb or beef broth. Cook 30 minutes, or till rice is tender. Now beat 2 eggs thoroughly with juice of one large lemon. Add mixture gradually to one cup of hot broth, stirring hard. Remove soup from heat; stir egg-broth mixture into it carefully. Now stir hard one minute! Serve with chopped parsley on top.

CLEANING LAUNDRY

Sarah Churchill Jailed As Drunk; Fights Cops

... She Claims Lawman Hit Her

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Sarah Churchill, actress daughter of Britain's Sir Winston Churchill, was jailed for five hours Monday. Sheriff's deputies accused her of being drunk, of using obscene language on the telephone and attacking a lawman.

Miss Churchill, charged with being drunk in public view, denied it and said she will plead innocent in court. She accused a lawman of striking her.

The 44-year-old daughter of Great Britain's former Prime Minister is here for television performances. Friends said she has been upset since her husband, society photographer Anthony Beauchamp, 39, committed suicide in London last August. They had been estranged.

For several hours after being arrested at her home at nearby Malibu Beach Miss Churchill refused to give her name and was listed simply as "Jane Doe."

A mystery developed over exactly what led to her arrest.

Profane

Deputies said they were called to the home on a complaint by the General Telephone Co. Officers said they were told the red-haired actress had telephoned various persons, including the phone company, using profane and obscene language.

Deputies said Miss Churchill demanded, "What the hell do you want?" when they arrived.

They said they found the kitchen curtains torn down, the refrigerator smeared with lipstick and the contents of Miss Churchill's purse scattered. They said they calmed her and were about to leave when she climbed into their car and resisted efforts to put her out.

They took her to a substation, where they said it took two male officers and a matron to subdue her. One deputy's shirt was torn. Taken to the Los Angeles Hall of Justice, Miss Churchill cried as she was booked: "So this is American justice. At least it takes two stalwarts to hold me."

'V' Sign

She held up two fingers—the "V" for victory sign made famous by her father in World War II.

She later was released on $50 bail furnished by her attorney, Robert J. Gottlieb.

Miss Churchill had her fingerprints taken wearing an ill-fitting blue jail smock, which she held snug around her waist.

She was granted permission to change into her own clothes before meeting newsmen and photographers.

"Miss Churchill says the officers who arrested her pinned her arms and slapped her face," Gottlieb said. "She was only trying to protect herself."

The slim actress left the jail clad in a white blouse, tan jacket and tapered aqua-colored pants.

She denied to newsmen that she had been drinking, but said, "yes, I often use the telephone. That's what it's for. I'm going to plead not guilty."

No Great Hurry

HONG KONG (AP)—Premier Chou En-lai indicates Red China is not yet ready to scrap ancient ideographs for a modern alphabet, though the draft of a phonetic scheme was approved by the ruling State Council last Nov. 1. In a speech broadcast by Radio Peiping, Chou said the ideographs—or picture writing—had made an indispensable contribution to China. He added that whether they "should be replaced by a Latinized or any other phonetic form is a question which we are not in a hurry to decide."

5-Cent Postage On Inter-City Letters Urged

... By Eisenhower

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower surprised Congress with a budget message request that the charge for mailing a one-ounce letter between cities be raised from 3 to 5 cents. That would be the highest rate since Civil War days.

The President told Congress that unless this and other postal rates are increased promptly, there probably will be an unbalanced budget in the fiscal year that begins next July 1.

And even with proposed rate increases that would bring in an additional 700 million dollars a year, Eisenhower said, the Post Office Department would operate at a substantial deficit.

Eisenhower last year asked Congress to raise the 3-cent letter rate, in effect since 1932, to 4 cents. Congress took no action then and the President had been expected to request similar rate boosts this year. However, he said he was asking a 2-cent hike on intercity letters because of a prospective postal wage increase and other higher costs. Letters moving within a city would be handled for 4 cents.

As he did last year, the President asked Congress to adjust almost all postal rates upward, including those for advertising matter, parcels, newspapers and magazines.

Youth Still Serious After Car-Train Crash Near Denton

A 19-year-old Lincoln youth remained in "serious condition" in a Lincoln hospital, according to hospital authorities, after the car he was driving was in collision with a train near Denton late Sunday night.

Officials said, however, that Robert Parish of 1859 So. Pershing Rd. was "responding favorably."

Parish suffered a broken wrist and many cuts and bruises. He was injured when his car collided with a Burlington freight train one-half mile west of the Denton depot. The collision, which was not discovered until an hour later, took place in heavy fog with visibility in the area cut to 30-50 feet, the Safety Patrol said.

No Protection

PHOENIX, Ariz. (INS) — Gov. Orval Faubus of Arkansas, key figure in the Little Rock school integration crisis last year, said he will not protect Negro pupils if federal troops are removed from Central High School.

In Phoenix attending the 20th annual meeting of the national cotton council, Faubus declared: "It is improper to put police force in the schools."

Jury Panel Cddled

A 120-member jury panel has been called for Jan. 27th in Lancaster District Court. About 75 persons will probably be selected for jury duty from the panel. No criminal cases are scheduled for the session. Judges Harry Spencer, Harry Ankeny and Paul White will hear the cases.

Canaveral Secrecy To Be Tightened

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — Maj. Gen. Donald N. Yates told newsmen Monday that efforts to tighten secrecy at the Air Force missile test center will be increased, even though it makes reporting more difficult.

Yates, chief of the test center, told reporters and photographers that he sympathized with their problems and was not trying to harass them.

But he said the need to prevent disclosure to potential enemies of information about the U.S. missile testing program was paramount.

Yates said that until his instructions are changed, he will continue to do everything he can to prevent unauthorized persons from learning of missile launching plans or of the results of tests.

An influx of newsmen is expected this week in preparation for the next attempt to launch the Vanguard rocket, a "test flight" which if successful would put the first American satellite into orbit.

Yates said the time of the Vanguard firing is classified and added that any further information about that project must come from Washington.

Cameras, photographers and persons with binoculars have been denied access to the best observation points for watching missile launch tests.

In Trouble Again

TOKYO (AP)—The little Japanese icebreaker Soya, freed by a Soviet vessel after being gripped by Antarctic ice for two weeks last winter, is in trouble again. Freezing weather trapped the 87 miles from Ongul Island, where 20 Japanese scientists plan to spend the winter. The group may have to be reduced if the 2,610-ton vessel can't get through with the cargo of food, fuel and observation equipment.

Came Back

SCRANTON, Pa. (AP)—Two convicts who said they operated a television secretly at the Lackawanna County Prison broke out of jail twice last month to steal parts for the TV set.

They always came back. Dist. Atty. Carlton M. O'Malley offered that bit as the prison board launched an investigation into recent escapes, particularly that of Edward Grabousky, 35, and Lawrence Tomasetti.

Mrs. Edna Olson, 27-Year Resident Of Lincoln, Dies

Mrs. Edna Caroline Olson of 2830 Woodside, a Lincoln resident for 27 years, died Monday.

Born at Wakefield, she had lived all of her life in Nebraska and was a member of Westminster Presbyterian Church and Order of Eastern Star, and a charter member and past president of Chapter ES, PEO.

Surviving are her husband, A.A.; a daughter, Mrs. Harry Basch of New York City; sisters, Mrs. E. E. Hype and Mrs. Lawrence Ring, both of Wakefield and Mrs. Orville Erickson of Sioux City, Ia.; and brothers, Edward Sandahl of Wayne and Fred and Ernest Sandahl, both of Wakefield.

Educators Like President's Aid Program

Nebraska educators Monday expressed general approval of the educational aid program outlined in the President's budget.

At Grand Island, State Commissioner of Education Freeman Decker reported the State Board of Education discussed the President's education program at its Monday meeting but determined "it could take no stand on it one way or another until it sees something specific about the program."

Dr. Steven N. Watkins, Lincoln superintendent of schools, said the President's proposal would "speed-up the educational program in the fields of science, mathematics and foreign languages."

Dr. Watkins said he was pleased at the four-year time limit recommended by the President.

University of Nebraska Chancellor Clifford Hardin said, "It is encouraging to see the recognition of the problem at the highest level in government and, in general, the proposals seem realistic."

Dr. Hardin noted as good efforts to permit local flexibility in the program.

"THANK YOU CHANCELLOR HARDIN"

"Ak-Sar-Ben was at least 10 years ahead of its time in envisioning the need for highly trained people to meet the world challenge," says Chancellor Clifford M. Hardin of the University of Nebraska.

Naturally, we are highly honored that the judgment of our Board of Governors in establishing the Ak-Sar-Ben scholarship program has met with the approval of so outstanding an educator as Chancellor Hardin.

Since 1946, hundreds of young Nebraskans have received university training in agriculture through the financial assistance of Ak-Sar-Ben. More than 100 scholarships and fellowships are maintained annually in the University of Nebraska College of Agriculture alone.

Thus, through advanced education, these young people are becoming better farmers and livestock growers, thereby insuring the future prosperity of our state.

This program has been made possible by revenues from thoroughbred racing.

U.S. To Spend One-Fifth Of Nebraskans' Income

... Citizens Council Estimates

Nebraska taxpayers' share of federal expenditures proposed in the budget presented to Congress Monday amounts to about one-fifth of all personal income in the state.

The Nebraska Citizens Council estimates that Nebraska taxpayers will pay $443,604,000 as their share of the $73.9 billion proposed budget.

This amounts to about $309.30 for each man, woman and child in Nebraska, according to the Citizens Council. The Associated Press reported a national per capita figure of $427.86.

The new federal budget for the fiscal year which ends June 30, 1959, as submitted by the President, calls for expenditures totaling $73.9 billion. Net budget receipts are estimated at $74.4 billion, leaving a $466 million surplus.

The Nebraska Citizens Council pointed out that Nebraska's share of the federal budget tax burden amounted to six-tenths of 1 per cent of the total, using an allocation formula devised by the Tax Foundation, national research organization.

The $43.6 million Nebraska taxpayers would contribute "represents a substantial burden, amounting to one-fifth of all of our personal income, when we remember that it comes on top of our state and local taxes," the report said.

Missiles alone—research, development, production, missile ships and construction for the program—will cost an estimated $30.67 per American.

The national debt figure, estimated as of July 1 at $271 billion, amounts to $1,569.44 for every person.

Stanton Delaplane's POSTCARD

And the rain comes down, comes down. Mexico City is dripping in this unseasonable January.

The other night I went down to Prendes, one of Mexico's older restaurants.

Up in the fancy Reforma district, they are building great gourmet palaces where you couldn't buy a tortilla with a court order. The decor is right off 52nd street, New York city: Chrome leather and gleaming glass.

But Prendes, down in the old city, goes right on serving huachinanguito and gusanos de maguey. Langostinos con mantequilla de ajo—rich, ripe Mexican dishes with Mexican tequila and Mexican beer.

The lights are bright. The floor is tile. The same waiters are there. A little grayer but aren't we all?

"I recommend to you the oysters," said the waiter. "Fresh today from Vera Cruz."

"Very well."

"Naturally you will wish a tequila. I recommend to you the white tequila. The yellow tequila anejo is supposed to be aged. But the fabricators ship us something full of chemicals. For true aged tequila, you must go to Guadalajara."

"I will not go to Guadalajara. Give me the white tequila."

"With a little lime and salt," said the waiter. "It warms the blood. It has more vitamins than a drugstore. You do not have a hangover?" asked the waiter hopefully. "You are not crudo?"

"No, I am well. I have the appetite of a lion."

"May God keep you so. Now if you were crudo, I would recommend to you a bool."

A bull, said the waiter, pronouncing it "bool," is made as follows:

"Take one half a bottle of light beer. Put it in a stein. Add one-quarter bottle of ginger ale and one-quarter bottle of Orange Crush. Tuck in two jiggers of Mexican rum.

"It cures the crudo," said the waiter. "Also cures, typhoid, malaria. It enlivens the aged. It is a fountain of youth."

The waiter brought tequila with lime. He brought oysters with lime. And he brought huachinanguito, the flavorful red snapper, with lime.

Mexican limes are the tastiest in the world. The Mexicans use them on everything. They probably add a lot to the national diet base of corn tortillas and beans.

"If you become ill," said the waiter, "drink a little lime juice. If you suffer from a cold, soak the feet in hot water with lime juice added. You should also eat green chiles.

"There is nothing like the green chiles," he said, taking one from my plate and eating it in one bite. The green chiles are so hot that a nibble brings tears to my eyes.

"Truck drivers keep a pocketful of chiles," he said. "If they grow tired, they eat two or three. It wakes you up. We call them chiles of the poor," said the waiter, "for they are so cheap all can afford them.

"In this way," said the waiter, "Mexico keeps its splendid health: Chiles, limes and tequila. Chiles for the spirit. Limes against the infirmities. Tequila for gaiety. "There is also the bool," said the waiter, "for the moment of extremity. God is good to Mexico. All things are furnished."

WHILE CAR PRICES WENT UP THROUGHOUT THE INDUSTRY, THE PRICE OF THIS CAR WENT DOWN

Here's good news for people who are tired of reading about higher prices for 1958 cars: Ford has priced many of its new '58 models lower than corresponding 1957 models! In fact, with all their exciting new styling and engineering advances, Ford Custom 300's are priced as much as $50 lower than last year. This is based on a comparison of manufacturers' suggested retail delivered prices. You get a '58 Ford equipped the way most people want a car equipped today. No other car so fine is priced so low. No other car gives you so much value!

Who'd ever guess it's the lowest priced of the low-price three

In case you haven't yet gotten around to pricing this elegantly styled '58 Ford Custom 300, put your mind at ease. When you compare manufacturers' suggested retail delivered prices, you'll find that this Ford is priced lower than any sedan in its field. And Ford has the lowest-priced station wagon and convertible, too!

But price isn't everything. The '58 Ford made history, too, as the first car ever to use the whole world as its test track! This meant taking the all-new Interceptor V-8, combining it with new Cruise-O-Matic, the most versatile of all automatic drives, and tackling some of the roughest roads we could find on three continents. This terrific power team (available with up to 300 hp) proved that it can handle any driving you'll ever have to do... while saving you up to 15% on gas! Eisenhower Cautions Congress Against Commencing Any New Water Projects

... Recommends Funds Stay Near Current Level

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower cautioned Congress Monday that no new water projects should be started at this time.

His recommendation was in a budget message which stressed national defense and security.

The President recommended that appropriations for navigation, flood control, irrigation, power and water supply projects in the year starting July 1 be held at approximately the same level as the current fiscal year ending June 30.

He suggested a total of $789,332,000 for the Army Engineers and Reclamation Bureau, compared with $781,169,000 voted for the current year.

Eisenhower said that money voted by Congress for construction, planning and operation of the water projects by the two agencies should be limited to those projects already under way.

Last year, said the President, Congress voted money to start work on 407 new projects having a total cost of 4 1/2 billion dollars. As a result, he said, expenditures by the two agencies for the water projects will be somewhat higher than in any of the five preceding years and will increase further in 1959.

'High Commitment Level' Therefore, continued the President, "we should not at this time add to this extremely high level of commitments by starting any new projects in 1959."

Recommendations call for $627,670,000 for the Army Engineers and $161,662,000 for the Reclamation Bureau in the new fiscal year, compared with $638,293,000 and $142,876,000, respectively, voted by Congress last year.

$2,900,000 Asked For Frenchman-Cambridge

... $1,136,000 Tabbed For Bostwick Work

WASHINGTON (AP) — A slight increase in funds for the big dams in the Missouri River Basin and a cutback in money for reclamation work in the basin were requested Monday by President Eisenhower for the year beginning July 1.

Originally four huge dams and reservoirs were authorized by Congress in 1944 to harness the Missouri. Two of these, Gavins Point reservoir in South Dakota and Nebraska and Fort Randall Reservoir in South Dakota, are essentially completed. Work on the Garrison Reservoir in North Dakota and on Oahe Reservoir in South Dakota is continuing.

Eisenhower in his budget message to Congress recommended $41,800,000 in new money for Garrison and Oahe. This compares with $39,364,000 requested a year ago.

Reclamation Fund Down Congress was asked also to provide $34,524,000 to continue work by the Reclamation Bureau on projects in the basin. This compares with $40,346,000 requested for the current year ending next June 30.

The budget asked $1,136,000 for the Bostwick Division in Nebraska and Kansas. The work would include the last section of the Courtland Canal and adjacent laterals, construction of pump turnouts on the Franklin, Naponee, Superior and Courtland canals and other work.

A total of $2,900,000 was asked for the Frenchman-Cambridge Division in Nebraska. The funds would pay for completion of work on the Meeker-Driftwood irrigation system, work on the Culbertson Division Dam and other items.

The President asked for $9,995,000 for the transmission division of the basin.

Chappell Substation In Nebraska, part of this money would go to complete the Chappell substation and buy equipment for additions to the Sidney and Chadron substations. Contracts would be awarded for the Chappell and the Gering substation additions and the stub line from the Fort Randall power plant to the South Dakota-Nebraska state line.

The budget asked for about half a million dollars for drainage and minor construction work in the basin, including $45,000 for the Sargent Unit in Nebraska.

The budget included $10,563,000 for final clean-up work on the Glendo Dam and powerplant and work on the Fremont Canyon power plant in the Glendo Unit in Wyoming. This has been a project closely watched in the Nebraska Panhandle.

The President requested $9,000,000 to continue work on Garrison, the main control dam and reservoir for regulation of the basin. However, by using funds previously appropriated and not used, it is estimated that total work on the Garrison will be $10,004,944 for the year starting July 1.

Channel Stabilization

The budget seeks $4,000,000 for Missouri River channel stabilization from Sioux City to Omaha and $2,500,000 from Omaha to Kansas City. For Missouri River agricultural levees in Iowa, Missouri, Kansas and Nebraska the President asked $2,800,000 and for levees from Kenslers Bend, Neb., to Sioux City $800,000.

Eisenhower recommended $32,800,000 to continue work on the Oahe Dam and reservoir, estimated to cost $380,000,000.

Although no new funds were requested for Gavins Point and Fort Randall, about $850,000 of old funds are scheduled to be spent on Fort Randall in the new fiscal year. The estimated cost of Gavins Point is $47,800,000. Gavins Point has power units providing 100,000 kilowatts.

The President's asking for the Missouri Basin project totaled $34,524,000 compared with $40,346,000 for the current year ending June 30.

Stepped Up Small Watershed Program For Nation Proposed

WASHINGTON (AP) — A stepped up program of protection in small watersheds of the nation was proposed Monday by President Eisenhower for the year starting July 1.

The budget submitted to Congress by Eisenhower recommended spending $24,839,000 in the new fiscal year compared with $21,810,782 estimated for the current year ending June 30.

Under the program the Agriculture Department co-operates with the states and other agencies in planning and installing works of improvement in small watersheds to reduce damage from floodwater, sediment and erosion and for the conservation of water.

To carry out the proposed work in the new year, the President recommended only 14 million dollars in new money be provided. This would be added to an estimated $10,839,000 available from prior year balances to provide the $24,839,000.

Surveys are made by the department of proposed small watershed projects and work plans are prepared in co-operation with the local sponsors. The work, if approved, is paid for by federal and local funds.

The budget estimated about 100 projects will be in operation by the end of 1958 and it is expected an additional 60 will be in operation in 1959.

IMPERIAL

Now there's a new measure of fine motor cars

Literally thousands of people are coming in to examine, to drive, and to buy the magnificent 1958 Imperial—because it is the new yardstick against which they can measure all other cars.

The reasons are wonderfully clear. First, let your eyes absorb Imperial's superb, totally distinctive styling. Its exclusive, gracefully curved side glass. There is nothing reminiscent of yesterday. No gadgetry. Nothing contrived simply to impress.

Sit in the Imperial. Where else in the world of motordom will you see such genuine luxury? Where else Imperial's lordly pushbutton control panel... which places at your fingertip the industry's admittedly finest engineering?

Now... drive the Imperial. Feel the floating luxury, the dead-level smoothness of today's finest suspension system... the perfected suspension system.

We invite you to drive this unique motorcar. Once you have driven this great car you can appraise all others with a more knowing eye, for you have experienced the masterwork in action.

We must warn you, however—after Imperial nothing else will quite satisfy you. IMPERIAL... FINEST PRODUCT OF CHRYSLER CORPORATION.

Spann Begins Public Roads Bureau Work

Albert C. Spann officially began his duties Monday as Nebraska division engineer of the Bureau of Public Roads, U.S. Department of Commerce.

Spann, division engineer at Cheyenne, Wyo., the past five years, has been with the Bureau for 30 years.

He succeeds W. S. MacIntosh, who has retired.

Spann has also done work connected with direct federal construction in national forests and parks, and the location and construction of the Mt. Vernon Memorial Highway in Virginia.

He was awarded first prize in Wyoming in 1953 for his entry in a national essay contest on "How To Plan and Pay for the Adequate System of Highways We Need."

Spann served with the military government during World War II in the European Theater.

A graduate of the University of Utah, he is a member of the American Society of Civil Engineers and Tau Beta Phi, engineering honorary.

Mr. and Mrs. Spann have two daughter who are attending the University of Wyoming.

Pierce Church Files Incorporation Papers

The Methodist Church of Pierce, Neb., filed non-profit articles of incorporation with the secretary of state Monday. Incorporators include John H. Calvert, Homer F. Birch, Leo R. Frey, W. L. Devers, Archie Lederer and Ernest Hansen.

'Printing Week'

Gov. Victor Anderson, proclaiming this week "Printing Week" in Nebraska, said the art of printing "has contributed so much to our American way of life." The special week is being observed throughout the United States and Canada.

I-State Aide Pearce Hired By Nebraska

... Single Wing Vet Named To NU Varsity Staff

By DON BRYANT
Sports Editor, The Star

LeRoy Pearce, 30, has been named to the University of Nebraska football coaching staff.

Pearce, who has been on Jim Myers' staff at Iowa State for the past year, will arrive in Lincoln Wednesday.

Husker coach Bill Jennings said late Monday night that he "was very happy LeRoy has decided to join our staff."

"He has an out-standing football background and is highly recommended as a very fine young man," The Nebraska head man added, "I know LeRoy will make a valuable addition to our present staff of fine coaches."

Jennings said Pearce accepted the job late Monday afternoon and added, "we planned to announce his coming to Nebraska sometime Tuesday, but the story leaked out in Ames."

Pearce, who has a single wing background, will be a varsity assistant at Nebraska, Jennings said. The new aide was the highest paid assistant at Iowa State and served as backfield coach.

In conjunction with the naming of Pearce, Jennings also praised his present staff.

"All of them have done a tremendous job," he said. "They've worked hard in an effort to get our program going and they've done a good job."

The Husker coach had optimistic words, too:

"I know the staff is going to continue their efforts until the problems are solved. And I'd like to say the problems definitely are going to be solved. We're going to get the job done just as quickly as possible."

Jennings also said that the Regents-approved program for Husker football, which included the hiring of two more assistants (now one) in no way reflected on his present staff.

"We're very happy with our staff, but we want to make it even better," he said. "We did not look for a top-flight man (Pearce) because we lack one. We wanted another top-flight coach to go with those we already have, so we'll have one of the strongest staffs possible."

Pearce, contacted by The Star late Monday night, said he "was very happy to get the chance to coach at Nebraska."

"I just hope I can do what they want at Nebraska," he said. "I feel that coaching the Cornhuskers is a great opportunity for me."

The new aide was an assistant to Bowden Wyatt, now coaching at Tennessee, for 10 years. He was with Wyatt at Wyoming (he's a Wyoming graduate and former athletic star there), Arkansas and Tennessee before joining Myers at Iowa State last year.

At Iowa State Pearce coached the ends and wingbacks on offense and was the defensive backfield coach.

"I like defense best," he told The Star. "I expect I will help coach the backs at Nebraska, but that's up to Bill."

Pearce is married and has a one-year-old son. He plans to bring his wife and son—now visiting in Fayetteville, Ark.—to Lincoln as soon as he gets settled in his new job.

The new assistant indicated a great deal of eagerness for his Nebraska chores.

"We'll really be after them (the opposition) next fall," he said.

While no salary terms were announced Monday night, it is believed Pearce will receive more than the $8,000 he was getting at Iowa State.

The Huskers still must secure another assistant to share the freshman coaching duties. Plans call for two full time frosh coaches.

There are indications Warren Schmaekel, current staff member, will assume the head frosh duties next fall.

Pearce replaces Jack Landry, who resigned after the 1957 season to enter private business.

Other members of the Husker staff, in addition to Jennings and Schmaekel, are Don Strasheim, Dick Monroe and Don Scarborough.

Class C Cage Leaders High In Grid Ratings

... Concordia Moves To First

By AL BEEBE
Star Sports Staff Writer

Possession of a good football team doesn't always presage a top-notch basketball club.

Witness Omaha South, which wound up third in The Star's final rankings in football, but hasn't beaten a Nebraska basketball team. Or Blair, which was rated eighth in Class B football but has yet to win a basketball tilt this season.

On the other hand, a good football team often simply means that there are good athletes available, and in high school, this can mean good basketball.

It has for Seward Concordia, which this week moves to the top of The Star's Class C basketball roster. Concordia fattened its record to 7-1 last week by downing two more Class C clubs and a B team.

The Raiders replaced Alma as the No. 1 team, as the defending champs were pressed into three overtimes before beating Class D Hildreth.

Concordia, in football, had The Star's No. 1 Class C club. Alma, second in basketball this week, was No. 4 in football. And David City St. Mary's was sixth in C football and holds the fourth slot in basketball this week.

All five of the Concordia starters were football players, although one of them, Roger Schmidt, suffered an injury before the season opened and had to sit out the year. Schmidt is the shortest of the starters at 5-10.

Reimers Triggers OU's First Big Eight Downfall

By RON SPEER
Star Sports Staff Writer

Gary Reimers was the cap for a University of Nebraska second-half explosion Monday night which shattered the visiting Oklahoma Sooners' hold on the Big Eight Conference basketball lead, 57-54.

The dust didn't settle on the University Coliseum until Reimers had potted a pair of charity tosses with four seconds left to wrap up the Husker's first Big Eight victory. It was OU's first loop loss.

Neither team gave an inch in the defensive battle. The score was knotted nine times in a tense first half before the Sooners pulled ahead by seven points with 2:52 remaining before the intermission. They held the same lead when the second half started, 31-24.

That's when Reimers kicked off the Husker comeback. He connected on two long, long one-handed set shots to cut the gap to 38-31. Then the Sooners hit a drought and scored only eight points in 13 minutes of play.

Herschell Turner dropped in a free throw, Willie Fitzpatrick tipped in a bucket, Reimers made an amazing pass to Lyle Nannen under the basket for two more and then Reimers ripped the nets with another of his long swishers to put Nebraska in front 35-34.

The Huskers never trailed again, although it took 10 straight free throws in the final five minutes to protect their lead.

Turner, who played a fine game, poured in six straight points to up Nebraska's margin to six points — 47-41 — with 5:35 left, and although the Sooners' Gene Hudson and Joe King tried valiantly, Oklahoma couldn't catch up.

Nebraska used a stall during the last stages of the game and it drew foul after foul from the scrappy Sooner cagers.

King tipped in a rebound with 15 seconds left in a last-gasp effort which narrowed Nebraska's lead to a single point, 55-54, but then he kayoed Reimers with a crushing body block.

Reimers — shaken up by the 6-6½ husky — took a few seconds to catch his breath and then calmly hit both free shots for the safety points.

Fitzpatrick hit six of nine field goal attempts, four in the first half — to keep Nebraska close. He finished the game with 20 points and seven rebounds. Don Smidt was tops in rebounds with nine, and added five points — one a clutch free throw which upped Nebraska's lead to 55-52.

Turner had 12 points — eight on free throws, and Reimers tallied 10 points.

Hudson, Oklahoma's playmaker and a fine shot, led Sooner shooters with 19 points. King had 14.

Nebraska had a good shooting percentage — 47 per cent — but got only 36 shots. Oklahoma took 56 shots and hit 19 for a .339 mark.

The victory left Nebraska at a 1-2 in conference play. The Huskers have lost to K-State and Missouri. Oklahoma is now 2-1, with victories over Colorado and Kansas.

Nebraska hosts Iowa State, currently tied for the league lead with Kansas State, Saturday night.

PROCHASKA TO ASSIST CARDS' IVY

EDMONTON (AP) — The Edmonton Eskimos of the Western Interprovincial Football Union announced Monday Assistant Coach Ray Prochaska has resigned to follow Coach Frank (Pop) Ivy to the Chicago Cardinals of the National Football League.

Club President Cecil Ross said the 38-year-old Prochaska was given a "good offer" to become Eskimo head coach but turned it down to become Ivy's assistant at Chicago. Ivy signed with the Cardinals last Thursday.

Ross said, "We have since heard from Prochaska and he has decided to accept a counter-offer from the Chicago Cardinals, thus continuing his association with Frank Ivy."

He said several U.S. college coaches have shown interest in joining the Edmonton coaching staff. Prochaska is a former Nebraska player and assistant coach.

Faithful readers will get a bonus today. We're about to relate a tale that's truer than fiction. We call it "The Case of the Unexpected Cotton-tails."

Right off the six-year-old TV mystery watcher in the family will point out that we can't cut the mustard as a who-dunit author.

We're starting all wrong. Most spine-tinglers begin with disappearance of somebody or something. Ours started with the appearance of something—and that something was a bushel basket full of furry little cottontails.

Like most mysteries, this one began on a perfectly normal, casual Saturday night. We were headed for the bowling alley, with hopes of a "good" night ahead. Our hopes went up in smoke as soon as we opened the back door of our car. Sitting in the back seat was the basket and the dead rabbits.

At first we thought perhaps a happy reader had left them as a gift... but that observation was squelched immediately... so maybe it was a gag pulled by a friend... but we don't have any friends ambitious enough to hunt down that many critters and now we've come to the conclusion that it was a case of mistaken identity... in cars that is... and probably today someone is feeling just as badly about losing that many rabbits as we are about what to do with them.

If anyone has evidence leading to the owner of these rabbits there will be no reward. But it will take quite a load off our mind, and perhaps our bowling will get back to par.

P.S.—The only sensible remark we've received from friends was: "Buy a dog, you goof, you've got enough food to last all winter."

Cornhusker cheerleaders ought to get around and meet the players.

Jerry Wheeler, three-year letterman tackle who ended his college career last fall, Monday told us a tale that indicates that Nebraska gals need a brushing up on "Who's Who" in Husker athletic circles.

Jerry is from Milan, Ill., and when the Huskers traveled to Columbia, Mo., last fall to play the Missouri Tigers his folks drove down to see the game.

While the Cornhuskers were still dressing, Jerry's father asked a University of Nebraska cheerleader if she knew Jerry Wheeler.

"No, I don't," replied the gal that spends her Saturdays traveling to Nebraska games and leading the cheering for a Nebraska victory. "What does he do?"

One of the longest prep winning streaks in Nebraska is held by a Lincoln Southeast athlete.

Jim Frank, slender senior diving champ is undefeated in the past 27 meets. That's quite a feat when you consider that one false step on a slippery board spells defeat.

Frank won the state diving title last spring, and will be favored to repeat in this year's state water carnival.

The change in the extra point scoring, which gives a team two points for a conversion made by a run or pass, is drawing comment both pro and con. Terry Brennan, Notre Dame grid coach, summed up most of the criticism when he remarked:

"It just doesn't seem right to me. A team may be able to fight 100 yards to get six points, and now by going another three yards it gets two more points."

On the whole most coaches seem to favor the plan, although they realize the downtown quarterbacks will have a field day every time a coach goes for broke and elects to win rather than tie in a close game.

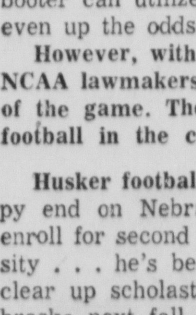

We feel that it is a good move. In the past the extra point has often been a mere formality, with the team having a mechanical kicker usually coming out ahead. Now a team without a standout booter can utilize its power or passing game to even up the odds.

However, with a few more rules like that the NCAA lawmakers may have to change the name of the game. There just isn't much foot left in football in the college or high school variety.

Husker football notes: LeRoy Butherus, scrappy end on Nebraska's 1955 football team, will enroll for second semester classes at the University... he's been in the service, but hopes to clear up scholastic difficulties and play for Nebraska next fall... the Lincoln High standout is known for his toughness at the flank... another end, Clarence Cook of McCook, has had three operations in the past three days... the senior letterman had calcium deposits removed from his hand, shoulder and knee.

Cyclones Tip Drake

DES MOINES (AP) — Iowa State held Drake's Red Murrell to seven points Monday night and went on to defeat the Bulldogs 63-42 in a non-conference game here.

Murrell, one of the nation's leading scorers, scored only one field goal, a tipin early in the contest. He entered the game with an average of 24.6 points.

Iowa State led 31-18 at the half.

The Cyclones, forcing Drake's mistakes with their aggressive full court press, took command on the shooting of Bud Berman and Lyle Frahm. Berman led all scorers with 12 points.

KU Blasts Buffs 67-46 As Wilt Returns, Hits 32

LAWRENCE, Kan. (AP) — Wilt Chamberlain scored 32 points as he returned to action Monday night and led Kansas to a 67-46 victory over Colorado in a Big Eight Conference basketball game.

Chamberlain was ill and missed the last two games, which Kansas lost by close margins. He played the entire game Monday night.

The towering Wilt now has scored 354 points for an 11-game average of 32.2.

Leo Hayward was Colorado's high scorer with 16.

Kansas trailed 17-16 with only five minutes left in the first half. Then the Jayhawkers outscored the Buffaloes 13-0 and ran up a 29-17 advantage with 20 seconds left in the half. Chamberlain got eight points in that rally and Kansas led 29-19 at the half.

Colorado never got closer than eight points in the second half and KU's final margin of 21 was

Erdelatz Is Top Texas A&M Bet

I-State's Jim Myers Drops From Picture

COLLEGE STATION, Tex. (AP) — Navy football coach Eddie Erdelatz conferred with Texas A&M officials Monday and then told newsmen "neither Texas A&M nor its officials have made me an offer" to become athletic director and head football coach.

He also denied previous reports that at a meeting in Washington with Texas A&M representatives last week money and the actual signing of a contract had been discussed.

In response to newsmen's questions Erdelatz said he was in a position to accept an offer if it should be made during his visit here.

Erdelatz and three of his assistants at Navy—Steven Belichick, Wayne Hardin and Ernie Jorge—arrived by plane and met for about 30 minutes with six members of board of directors and Dr. Chris Groneman, chairman of the faculty athletic council.

They toured the campus, visited with school officials and Erdelatz talked with two assistant coaches who remained here when Paul Bryant resigned to go to Alabama, his alma mater. They were line coaches J. T. King and Willie Zapalac.

Earlier in the day Jim Myers of Iowa State, considered the top choice for a week, withdrew from consideration.

"I would have liked to have made the trip (to A&M) without publicity," Erdelatz told a news conference. "We wanted just to visit the school and its surroundings."

He said he did not want to make any statements about the position here but preferred to let events take their natural course.

Erdelatz was at least the sixth big-name coach considered at one time or another for the A&M job since Paul (Bear) Bryant resigned to return to his alma mater.

The lure at A&M appeared to be, among other things, hard cash. The college reportedly will pay $16,000 a year for the dual job of head football coach and athletic director. This is believed considerably boosted by an Aggie fan group. The coach receives a residence free, and TV and other contracts can further increase the basic salary.

Some observers close to the scene have estimated an A&M coach can make as much as $60,000 a year, although A&M officials have said that is too high.

Among those given top billing as the probable next coach at one time or another, in addition to Myers and Erdelatz are Frank Leahy, former Notre Dame coach; Henry (Red) Sanders, UCLA; Duffy Daugherty, Michigan State; and Jack Curtice, University of Utah.

Myers said in a statement at Ames, Iowa, "I feel it was an honor and a compliment to be considered with many of the top coaches in America for the position."

"I have always been happy at Iowa State and will fulfill my agreement with the college."

He also said he had never been contacted about a coaching vacancy at Stanford.

Little Wants Goal Posts Moved, Too

ATLANTA (AP) — The one, two-point-after-touchdown football rule change prompted Lou Little, former Columbia University coach, to pledge a renewed fight for moving the goal posts to the goal line.

The chairman of the National Football Coaches Assn. said the new conversion rule, one point if kicked, two points if scored by running or passing came as a complete surprise to him. It hadn't even been mentioned when he left Fort Lauderdale, Fla., site of the rules meeting, over the weekend, he explained.

If he had been there—as observer for the coaches association—he declared he would have stood out for incorporation of the goal post change.

"Then," he argued, "we would have had good balance—running, kicking and passing."

Hickman Wins In MUDECAS

Lincoln Star Special
BEATRICE—Hickman rallied to down Holmesville 51-45 in the feature game at the opening session of the annual MUDECAS basketball tournament here Monday night.

In the Class A division game, Brock whipped Odell, 50-40. The tourney opened with Panama downing Burr 45-34, and Raymond whipping Douglas, 50-22, in Class C contests.

Holmesville held 7-1 and 11-2 first quarter leads against Hickman, and still led by one point at the half. But Hickman outscored Holmesville 16-8 in the third period to take a 42-35 advantage into the final period.

Top scorer of the night was Odell's Bill Wieden, who turned in 20 points in a losing effort.

Tonight's action opens at 4:30 with Elk Creek meeting Virginia in the other Class C first round game. Burchard, which drew a bye, meets Panama in a semifinal at 6 p.m.

Class A plays the other two games to wind up its first round. Barneston meets Sprague-Martell at 7:30, followed by Sterling against tourney-favorite and defending champion Clatonia.

MYERS-O'TOOLE IN SEMIWINNUP

World's Champion Edouard Carpentier and Don Leo Jonathon will have solid back-up support for their Wednesday night 4-H Building wrestling feature.

Matchmaker Tom Novak has come up with Sonny Myers, former world's junior heavyweight champion, for the semiwinup against Tommy O'Toole.

And the opener will present a newcomer from the East, Bob (Legs) Langevin of Manchester, N. H., against Omaha's Rowdy Joe Dusek.

Lincoln fans and their neighbors will be getting their first look at the new world's champion, Carpenter, the Flying Frenchman, dethroned Lou Thesz for the title last year and is working on an all-victorious streak in America. Don Leo, the 300-pound Mormon meaneie, is no stranger to local fans.

Dodgers Still Without Home; Rose Bowl Negotiations Fail

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Walter O'Malley's melodramatic search for a home for his waifs from Brooklyn produced another cliff-hanging episode Monday. The Dodgers almost made it to Wrigley Field, only to halt on the threshold.

The long hunt for a home-away-from-home for the Dodgers while their permanent park is being built seemed to have ended in the former minor league home of the Los Angeles Angels. Then the Dodgers' rotund president gave the O'Malley-go-round another spin.

After announcing he felt "constrained to select Wrigley Field as the site for the 1958 major league games" of the Dodgers, O'Malley told reporters clamoring for more information that he is still in contact with Los Angeles officials on the possibility of using the 100,000-seat Coliseum.

O'Malley's near-decision to settle in Wrigley Field came after the collapse of negotiations for the Rose Bowl, another 100,000-seat structure in nearby Pasadena.

That venture floundered on the cost of transforming the famed football stadium into a baseball park—a sum estimated at $750,000. The negotiations ended in Pasadena's City Hall Monday morning and O'Malley then sped in a police car to Wrigley Field, some 13 miles away, to be on hand for the announcement that he was "constrained" to select that as his home park.

The reason for the police car was that the announcement was to be made simultaneously by O'Malley in Los Angeles and Pasadena officials in their own city hall, and he had to hustle to get to Wrigley

Field at the agree-upon time for the release.

After reading the statement, O'Malley was asked if that meant he had reached a final decision to play in Wrigley Field, a 22,000-seat park in a congested section of Los Angeles.

"Well, No," responded Walter, obviously reluctant to give up the grandiose dream of playing before a crowd of 100,000. "I'm not burning any bridges behind me."

O'Malley said he was meeting later in the day with Mayor Norris Poulson to explore the possibility of overcoming the opposition of the Coliseum commission to the Dodgers playing in their stadium. The Coliseum is owned jointly by the state, county and city and the commission is made up of representatives of each.

The Dodger president said it was definitely a last-ditch effort, however, as the Dodgers have a home game with the San Francisco Giants on April 18, and have to settle on a site quickly.

Pro Sport Laws Are 'Nearer'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Hillings (R-Calif.) said Monday House Judiciary Committee members were nearing a "meeting of minds" on legislation affecting professional sports.

Hillings has been active in sponsoring legislation to clarify the position of pro sports under the anti-trust laws.

"There is a good possibility now that some legislation will be enacted this year," he told a reporter. "I believe Mr. Celler (Chairman Celler, D-NY) and others of us interested are pretty much in agreement that all but the purely business aspects of professional sports should be exempted from federal regulation."

MEMPHIS ST. NAMES COACH

MEMPHIS (AP)—Billy J. (Spook) Murphy, backfield coach at the University of Minnesota, Monday was named head football coach at Memphis State University.

C. C. Humphreys, MSU athletic director, said Murphy had accepted by telephone after the school's athletic committee met Monday and agreed to offer him the post. The contract is for three years. No terms were announced.

The 36-year-old former Mississippi State backfield star will succeed Ralph Hatley who resigned recently to become chairman of MSU's health and physical education department. Murphy was backfield coach under Hatley from 1947 to 1952.

The new coach takes over a team which has been placed on probation for the next two years for violation of the athletic code of the National Collegiate Athletic Assn. The NCAA voted the action at its recent meeting in Philadelphia, charging irregularities in enrollment of basketball players.

HANK AARON

Hank Aaron Will Shoot For Bat Title

MILWAUKEE (AP) — The Braves' Hank Aaron Monday trained his 20-15 vision on the 1958 National League batting title, saying he'd let the homers and runs batted in take care of themselves.

The easy-does-it slugger with the powerful wrists was voted the NL's Most Valuable Player this past season after winning the home run and RBI titles, with 44 and 132 respectively, and hitting .322. He won the batting title in 1956 with an average of .328.

"I'd settle for another year or six more like the last," Aaron said with a wide grin while sizing up a shot on his pool table at home. "But, I'd prefer to hit for a higher average."

"I didn't concentrate on either homers or runs batted in last season," he continued. "They just kind of took care of themselves. If I can hit more consistently, there's no reason why I can't hit 30-35 homers and drive in 100 or more runs every year."

"If I can get a good start again like I did last season, there's no reason why I can't win the batting title too. This is my first winter in Milwaukee and I'm hoping it works out all right. Last year I loosened up around Mobile, Ala., where my home is, playing catch with my brother and it helped."

"You can't do that up here with all the snow. I'll tell you one thing, though, if I don't get off to a good start this spring, this is the last winter I'll spend around here."

Aaron said a .350-.352 average should be high enough to win the batting crown.

77 Phillie Tilts On TV

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—The Philadelphia Phillies said Monday they are completing arrangements with station WOR-TV, New York, to televise 77 home and road games during the 1958 National League season.

A Phillies spokesman said that the games would be mostly home contests but some games with terms in the East and as far west as St. Louis would be included. The time element, he added, would preclude televising any games with the San Francisco Giants and Los Angeles Dodgers at those cities.

The club spokesman said a published estimate that the TV "package" would bring the Phils a million dollars was "very optimistic." Whether there would be only one sponsor or a group of them has yet to be decided. The estimate was reported by Joe Williams, New York World Telegram and Sun columnist.

The Phils spokesman declined comment on the reported breakdown of revenue from the baseball telecasts.

'Major Overhauling Ahead For Schools'

... Dr. Stoddard Warns Nebraskans

GRAND ISLAND, Neb. (U-P)—The challenge of school board members transcends any challenge today: give us schools to match our times. Dr. A. J. Stoddard of Los Angeles, onetime Nebraska educator, told the 39th meeting of the Nebraska State School Boards Assn. Monday.

Stoddard, former Los Angeles school superintendent, and Robert W. Hamblet, director of health and physical education for the Grand Island schools, addressed the association.

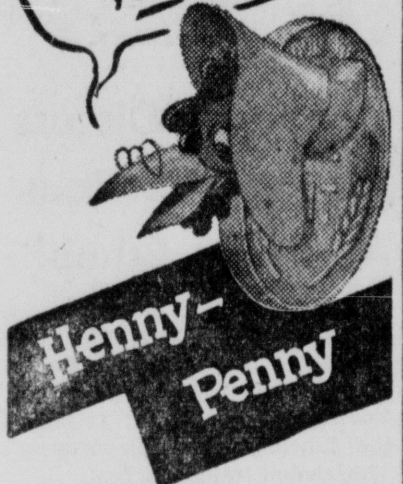

Hamblet proposed reaching every child with a program for physical fitness, and Dr. Stoddard acknowledged that some major overhauling was ahead for the schools.

Dr. Stoddard told the gathering he long had championed the cause of public education and the function of the schools in relation to the purposes of the country.

Lincoln Star Special

PLYMOUTH, Neb. — Funeral services for John C. Selk Sr., 92, who died at his home here, will be held at 2 p.m. Thursday at St. Paul's Lutheran Church at Plymouth.

Surviving are his wife, Adeline; seven sons, Elmer of Lincoln, John of Omaha, Erwin of Tulsa, Okla., Harold and Milbert, both of Plymouth, Harry G. of Scott, and Arnold of Hamburg, Ia.; three daughters, Mrs. Alene Mahaffey of Kansas City, Mo., Mrs. Leona Weichel of Denver, and Mrs. Maxene Bersley of Tulsa, Okla.; 14 grandchildren and 14 great grandchildren.

Fire Destroys Steak House

OMAHA (U-P)—The Lakeview Steak House at Carter Lake, closed about a month, was destroyed by fire early Monday.

The flames which broke out in a rear storage area of the one-story brick structure, formerly the off-raided Capri Club, surged out of control after an explosion forced Carter Lake firemen from the building.

Pete Bonacci, one of the owners, said he believed it was a case of arson. He said he had turned down a recent offer of $15,000 for the property.

The Carter Lake Volunteer Fire Department answered the 6 a.m. call. Chief Larry Dutton said he told Omaha firemen who arrived 10 minutes later they were not needed and the engine returned to Omaha.

The Omaha Fire Department sent three companies about 50 minutes later, when flames were sweeping the entire building.

Otto Paulsen, 60-year-old watchman who lived in the building turned in the alarm after he smelled smoke. Only the shell remained after the flames were brought under control.

Dutton said the blast probably centered at a gas furnace.

H-Bomb Use Seen As Next Russian Feat

OMAHA (U-P)—A Chicago nuclear physicist Monday predicted news of another "severe and humiliating defeat" at the hands of Russian scientists.

Dr. Leonard Reiffel, head of the Armour Research Foundation physics research, said he expects the Russians next September to reveal "great progress" toward harnessing the H-bomb for industrial purposes.

He suggested the announcement will come at the international conference on atomic energy at Geneva, Switzerland, and its effect on the scientific world "will be as great as was the launching of the Sputniks."

"According to information reaching me," he said, "the Russian H-bomb research program is five times larger than ours."

"And I feel that our approach is relatively immature and somewhat hectic."

Dr. Reiffel was here to address the Omaha Ad-Sell League.

WEATHER AHEAD

The five-day forecast issued by the Weather Bureau calls for precipitation averaging .10 inch, occurring as snow the middle of the period and again about Saturday. Temperatures are expected to average 3 to 7 degrees below normal, with a turn to the colder about Tuesday and again about Thursday. Normal maximums range from 28 to the upper 30s and normal minimums from 8 to 15 degrees.

Nebraskan Arrives in U.S. With Children From Australia

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A former GI who succeeded in spiriting his two small children out of Australia in a flight from his estranged wife arrived in Los Angeles Monday, en route back to Nebraska.

Elden Imler, 38, said he broke no laws in leaving Australia Sunday. He said he has as much right to custody of the children, Larry, 6, and Linda, 5, as his wife, Pamela Imler, of Adelaide, Australia, the former Pamela Robertson.

From Sydney, Australia, came a report that when Imler left by plane Sunday the police just failed by minutes to stop him from leaving the country. The police there, however, said no charges have been filed against Imler.

Joint Custody

On a stopover here Imler told a reporter that he and his wife have joint custody of the children and that he has as much right to them as she does. He read a letter

Man Seized For Quizzing In Cop Death

CHICAGO (AP) — George Starcevic, 23-year-old gunman sought in the slaying of a young policeman, surrendered Monday night to FBI agents. He was turned over to Chicago police for questioning.

Starcevic had been the subject of a citywide manhunt since the early morning slaying of patrolman John Quirk, 23.

Quirk was shot by two men who abducted the officer who was off duty, and a girl companion.

A man identified by police as the other gunman was seized shortly after the slaying.

Lapapa Seized

Police said Quirk was killed as he tried to shoot it out with the gunman in an effort to protect his 18-year-old date, Carolyn Smith.

Nick Lapapa, 23, son of a Chicago union leader, was seized shortly after the shooting when he entered a hospital emergency room and asked for treatment of a hand injury. At first he told hospital authorities he suffered the cut when he broke a pitcher in his home.

Later, police questioned Lapapa and said he admitted being present when Quirk was shot and killed but maintained Starcevic did the actual shooting.

Lapapa said he suffered a hand wound when Quirk whirled and opened fire on his abductors who had the drop on him in the back seat of his car.

The officer was killed with a bullet in the chest and in his back.

'More Time Needed' On Electric Code

Progress in drafting the new electrical ordinance is being made, but Deputy City Atty. Norma Ver Maas reported to the City Council that "more time is needed to work out legal conflicts."

Mrs. Ver Maas said that three major groups interested in the ordinance have retained attorneys in working out a proposed ordinance.

"The controversial areas have been narrowed," she said, "and major work left is the legal conflicts."

Thorne Asked

Her report was made after Councilman Hugh Thorne inquired about the status of the long-pending electrical code amendments.

Mrs. Ver Maas said the original proposed ordinance "is being completely rewritten" in the conferences with representatives of the Chamber of Commerce, electrical contractors, and smaller electricians.

Mrs. Ver Maas expected a meeting on the final draft could be held soon. She is to report again Feb. 3 on the ordinance's progress.

Omaha Firm Wins Bid On Beatrice Bonds

Lincoln Star Special

BEATRICE, Neb.—The Wachob-Bender Co. of Omaha was the successful bidder on $375,000 in sewer revenue bonds which will be issued by the city to finance a sewage disposal plant.

Average interest rate for the bonds, over a 20-year period, was computed at 3.3935 per cent. There were four bidders.

In other business, the council gave final approval to the bid of the Walters Construction Co. of Manhattan, Kan., for building a sewage disposal plant and connecting sewers. The Kansas firm bid about $548,691 and will begin work shortly.

John R. Zahm, was reappointed to a 3-year term on the municipal airport board.

Crete Man Freed After Questioning

A 56-year-old Crete, Neb., man was released by Lincoln police Monday after it was determined the quantity of building materials and groceries found in his car over the weekend had not been stolen.

The man is free on bond pending appeal of a felonious building entry charge, and his car had been stopped in a police check.

President's Message To Bulganin Makes Hit With West Europe Leaders

LONDON (AP) — President Eisenhower's message to Nikoai Bulganin made a hit with West European officials Monday. Press comment was not wholly enthusiastic but newspapers expressed relief that Eisenhower had not closed the door on a new summit conference.

A British Foreign Office spokesman told a news conference: "We warmly welcome the President's message. It contains a number of constructive proposals which, if accepted, would move us forward on the road to peace."

The French Foreign Ministry said Eisenhower's position on the East-West talks proposed by the Soviet Premier conformed to the view of the French government.

Eisenhower said "I am ready" to attend a summit conference on the condition that it is carefully prepared and shows good hope of promoting world peace.

West German officials in Bonn said they were particularly impressed with Eisenhower's call for scientific development for peaceful purposes. The message was described as very positive.

No Better

"We can do no better than to underwrite what the President said," a Foreign Office official said.

Some barbs appeared in newspaper editorials.

The Yugoslav Communist newspaper Borba, which often speaks for President Tito's government, said the positions of Eisenhower and Bulganin remain far apart. Challenging the idea a summit meeting at present could be negative, it said "establishment of direct contacts between the most responsible statesmen" would promote a favorable atmosphere.

In Norway, which has a common frontier with the Soviet Union in the far North, the Socialist Daily Arbeiderbladet spoke of Bulganin's proposals rather than the reply. It suggested it is time to "switch from letter writing to direct negotiations."

Oslo's Independent Morgenposten said: "We know very well that the area east of Norway's border is primed with launching platforms. When they are gone we can start talking of peace and order."

Critics

Among British critics of the American response was the liberal Manchester Guardian. It said: "Mr. Dulles seems to have won. The reply by President Eisenhower... leaves little hope that there can soon be fruitful negotiations at the summit."

There was a kinder view in Paris. The leftist Combat said the President's letter contains original proposals, "in particular the one concerning the use of space for peaceful purposes." The conservative Figaro said the French public would greet the reply with satisfaction and relief.

A call for the Russians to give serious consideration to Eisenhower's message was voiced by Asahi, Japan's largest newspaper.

"It is important... that the United States and the Soviet Union patiently seek further room to approach each other," Asahi said.

Moscow remained silent. There was no immediate reaction in the Soviet press or radio. The usual Soviet practice is to withhold publication of such communications and issue no comment until the Kremlin has replied.

Board Denies Rehearing On Teacher Permit

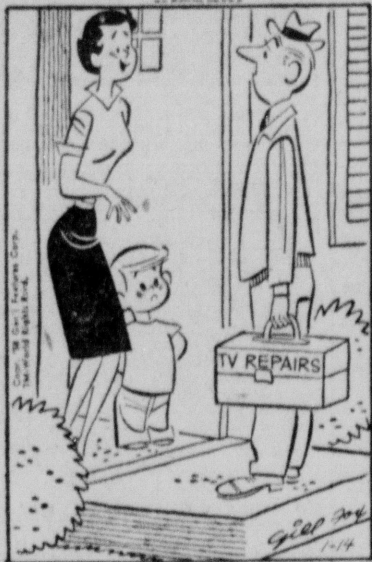

Lincoln Star Special

GRAND ISLAND, Neb. — The State Board of Education at a meeting in Grand Island Monday voted unanimously to reject the request for a rehearing on the revocation of the temporary teaching certificate of Mrs. Ethel Carson of Elmore.

The Board, which had revoked the certificate at its regular meeting in December, turned down Mrs. Carson's request on the grounds that she had received a "fair hearing last month." State Commissioner of Education Freeman Decker reported.

The Board had voted to revoke her certificate on the grounds that the local school board in Brown County had been "negligent" in trying to obtain a qualified regular teacher prior to opening of the September, 1957 school term.

"We found the trouble. My little boy had smeared peanut butter all over the screen!"

Contracting 7 Years

It was also noted by the Board that the Brown County rural school district had been a contracting school for seven years.

Following the Grand Island meeting, Dr. Decker said the Board felt it was a "matter of principle on which they must stand firm."

In other action, the Board Monday approved the offering of two new courses at the Nebraska State Trade School at Millard to start next fall "if there is sufficient demand" and Decker reported "there appears to be such demand."

The Courses

The new courses will be drafting, and the operation and maintenance of heavy equipment.

Decker said dedication ceremonies and an open house will be held at the State Trade School in April for the new buildings which were constructed to replace the buildings destroyed in the Millard tornado last April.

The State Board of Education also voted Monday to make minor changes in the state plan for vocational home economics instructors. Decker said the Board voted to ease certain restrictions on instructors in colleges teaching vocational home economics teachers.

Guilty Plea Made To False Pretenses

Gerald L. Bradley of Estherville, Ia., pleaded guilty Monday in Lancaster District Court to a charge of obtaining money by false pretenses.

Judge Harry Spencer deferred sentencing pending a report by the adult probation office. Bradley was charged with cashing a $3,122.18 check he had received from a local auto dealer which he was supposed to have used to pay off the balance of the mortgage on the car he had traded in on another.
